Capehart Housing Units To Have 'California Look'

By BETSY M. WOODMAN

The "pilot" building in the Capehart Housing Project at Hamilton Air Force Base is nearing the "open for inspection" stage. Selected for display is a three-bedroom, two-story unit with 1,080 square feet of living space planned

HAFB Housing Expected To Meet Schedule

Construction of the 550 family units in the Capehart Housing Project at Hamilton Air Force Base is slightly behind schedule, but the 127 units in Parcel A are expected to be completed by July 1, on schedule.

William S. Tsuchida, base installations project officer, said a duplex and a three-family residence will be the first completed units in the multi-million-dollar project. They are to be completed next week.

MAY BE DELAYED

Occupancy of the first completed section of homes may be delayed until fall, said Tsuchida, because of the confusion in might cause in completing the rest of the project. Occupancy will be determined by the base commander, the base housing office and others, he said.

Word has been received, said Tsuchida, that recreational areas might be added to the present job on a separate contract if funds are made available.

FEW SETBACKS

The construction, now going ahead under sunny skies, has experienced few setbacks, said Tsuchida. "We've not had material shortages." There are 290 workers now on the job.

Each of the modern units will be equipped with stove, refrigerators and washer and dryer, but no other furniture. The five pilot units will probably not be occupied immediately by Air Force families as was originally planned, to test out the quality of the homes. The units will, however, be critically inspected to find out if there are any "bugs" to be avoided in the remaining units still rising south of the base.

for use by an airman and his family.

Primary plans for Capehart housing are designed on a nationwide basis. Federal Housing Administration requirements must also be met, and costs must be within the congressional limitation, which holds all over the nation, of $16,500 for a complete family unit, exclusive of land cost.

'CALIFORNIA LOOK'

Plans and building materials, however, are modified according to regional preferences and needs. Thus, the buildings at Hamilton will have the "California look" both in structural details and general appearance. The project includes one-family, two-family and three-family buildings.

Basementless and mostly one story, the houses all have glass sliding doors from the dining area to a deck or terrace, according to the contour of the land. Single-floor buildings have an open trellis in the roof overhang. (Eastern inspectors find these "holes in the eaves" incomprehensible.)

PAVING STONE

Much use is made of paving stone sections interspersed with small grass plots rather than large lawns. Multiple car-ports fit in with the general design. The houses will be warmed by perimeter forced air gas heat.

A half bath on the first floor is unique with this project: It is the only Capehart with such a convenience in airman quarters.

MARIN ATHLETE WINS STATE DISCUS TITLE

A 17-year-old son of a Hamilton Air Force Base master sergeant last night won the California Interscholastic Federation discus championship in the state track and field finals at Bakersfield.

Before a crowd of 12,000 spectators, Ron Snidow of San Rafael High School shattered the CIF record in the event with a mighty throw of 176 feet, 1 inch. The former record of 173-3/4 was set in 1957 by Don Bell of Alameda.

Snidow, All-Northern California football star who led San Rafael to football and basketball championships, is the son of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Ralph Snidow of Ignacio.

SAN RAFAEL RITES HONOR WAR DEAD

Scant 100 Gather At County Courthouse For Memorial Day Service Of Tribute

Tribute was offered today to "those who paid the last measure of devotion" in Memorial Day services in front of the county courthouse in San Rafael.

A scant 100 persons gathered to pay their respect to Marin County's and America's war dead.

Rev. D. Murray Hammond of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley, asked those assembled to "hope for peace" from the Big Four talks at Geneva.

"We honor those men who fought and died, and because they did we enjoy countless liberties," he said.

"We wish to honor and admire them because of their qualities of bravery, sacrifice and discipline of purpose."

He said their deaths were the highest sacrifices of all, and spoke of the bravery that comes from fear in the night before battle.

Rev. Hammond said that perhaps "we feel a little guilt—we feel we should be with them instead of here."

"Sacrifice is not a popular word in times of prosperity," he said, "and discipline of purpose is not glamorous."

"If we honor them only with a surge of patriotism we do them a disservice," he said, adding that the war dead should be honored with resolve and purpose in our own lives.

The services were under the auspices of the Marin County Veterans and Auxiliaries Memorial Day Committee.

Services were also held in Fairfax under the auspices of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

RITA HAYWORTH DAUGHTER IN MARIN SCHOOL?

Actress Rita Hayworth reportedly has enrolled her daughter, Rebecca Welles, in Katharine Branson School at Ross for the fall term.

A report that Miss Hayworth's presence in Marin this week was to register Rebecca, daughter of the actress and her former husband, Orson Welles, could not be confirmed with school authorities.

The school announced its policy is not to discuss applications for entrance nor identify those for whom application is made until after their acceptance.

U. S. Golfer Wins British Tourney

SANDWICH, England (P) — Deane Beman, a 21-year-old University of Maryland junior, won the British Amateur Golf Championship today, defeating 43-year-old Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia, 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final at the Royal St. George's Course.

Beman, who never has won a major tournament in his own country, thus became the 12th American to win the British championship.

Hub Family Burned Out Of House; $12,000 Damage

Fire in a San Anselmo residence about to be occupied by a teacher and his family caused an estimated $12,000 damage last night.

San Anselmo firemen, who responded to a box alarm at 8:49 p.m., said Mr. and Mrs. William Kahn and their three small children had moved their belongings into the house at Prospect and Barber streets earlier in the day, then left for dinner about 7 p.m.

They had planned to spend the night in their new abode—but they returned to find firemen battling the flames.

Fire-fighters were hampered by newly moved household furnishings piled about the house. The floor furnace had been turned on, and a fire department spokesman said the blaze apparently started when something from a pile of furnishings dropped into it.

The fire department report estimated damage to the structure.

Gromyko Tells West To Get Out Of Berlin

GENEVA (P)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the western powers today of subversive activities in Berlin and demanded an end to their occupation of West Berlin.

Western diplomats said Gromyko spoke for 40 minutes in the Big-Four foreign ministers' conference, formally presenting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's six month-old demand that the West agree to make Berlin a free city.

Some informants said Gromyko hinted at a possible compromise of the Berlin problem, saying that if the Big Four put their minds to the problem they may be able to find an acceptable solution.

Gromyko rejected the Western plan for Berlin even as a basis for discussion by the conference.

He claimed dozens of subversive organizations now are located in West Berlin and assailed Rias, the Western radio station, which he claimed spreads "rumors, slanders and appeals for sabotage and disorders" in Eastern Europe.

Marin Drivers Take It Easy

Memorial Day eve was exceptionally quiet on Marin highways, reported Sgt. Vernon Dwelly of the California Highway Patrol.

Overnight, only one injury accident was reported to the CHP.

A car driven by Robert Kitzmiller, 21, of 200 Red Hill avenue, San Anselmo, ran into the right side of a car driven by A/3c Irwin Barry Cohen, 18, of the Hamilton Air Force Base hospital, reported CHP Officer Joseph Kendrick. Cohen's passenger, Mrs. Margaret Stevenson, 22, of 16 Baywood court, Fairfax, suffered a head cut. The accident happened at 2:35 a.m. today on the San Rafael ingress road from Francisco boulevard to Highway 101.

the early hours of the two day Memorial Day weekend and safety officials urged drivers to take extra precautions to hold down the final death toll.

"The toll of dead is running well ahead of last year's Memorial Day holiday," a National Safety Council spokesman said. "We ask every driver to remember he is responsible not only for his own safety and his own life but for the safety and lives of others."

The Memorial Day weekend—the first warm weather holiday and traditional opener for heavy auto travel—brought out hundreds of thousands.

Drivers faced beefed-up enforcement by authorities and stern warnings from the National Safety Council.

The council in estimating weekend travel by some 40 million autos, also said traffic accidents may cause 260 deaths.

The council's estimate covered a 54-hour period from 6 p.m. (local time) yesterday to midnight tomorrow.

Round-the-clock patrol work and manpower concentration in traffic danger areas were emphasized in many communities.

Ward Defeats 2 Close Rivals At 135.8 M.P.H.

INDIANAPOLIS (P)—Rodger Ward, 38-year-old former Air Force pilot from Los Angeles, won a tight, three-way speed contest for the 500-mile auto race championship today. He set a new speed record for the race.

The veteran racer reversed the result of the world's record 100-mile Daytona Beach race last month by beating Jim Rathmann of Miami, who was second by only 23 seconds.

Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa., was third; Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., fourth, and Paul Goldsmith, St. Clair Shores, Mich., fifth.

Magneto trouble forced Don Freeland out with the race two hours and 38 minutes old.

Dick Rathmann's car caught fire during a refueling stop and one crewman suffered burns trying to put out the fire. Rathmann was unhurt but the car was eliminated.

Pat Flaherty went out when his car hit the main straightaway wall after 400 miles. He escaped injury.

Bill Cheesbourg went out with magneto trouble and Al Keller with engine trouble late in the race.

Ward's winning speed was a record-breaking 135.857 miles an hour, topping the 135.601 of Sam Hanks two years ago.

To win, Ward made some shrewd use of yellow caution lights, holding his lead during cleanup of wrecks which seriously injured Ray Crawford, 43, wealthy Pasadena sportsman, and Mike Pasagill, 39, Hadonfield, N.J.

Pat Flaherty, Chicago, the 1956 winner, went out at 400 miles when his car went out of control and smashed walls on both sides of the track in front of the grandstands on the main straightaway.

Audience Is 'Actor' As 'Drunkard' Opens

A standing-room-only audience at Sausalito Little Theater's opening of its third season of summer melodrama last night proved to be one of the key actors in the ageless attraction "The Drunkard."

Exhorted by the "introducer" and a paragraph in the program to "indicate with suitable responses their approval and disapproval," the audience booed and hissed the rascal Lawyer Cribbs, excellently done by Don Michaelian, expressed loudly their approval of the heroic statements by heroine Mary Wilson with Elaine Mitchell in the starring role but reached tremendous heights and approving cheers for hero Edward Middleton, done by Neill Whitman, as he battled the demon rum.

Elaine Mitchell, starting her third season in the top role of the melodrama, took advantage of every possible action and expression to capitalize on the alternating joy and wretched life in which she found herself as the wife of the tipping drunkard.

Equally "over-convincing" was Neill Whitman as the key figure, Edward Middleton, tempted by drink only to be saved later. Again, he was helped by numerous loud suggestions from the audience when he was faced with critical decisions.

Don Michaelian as the villain, played a difficult role but was convincing even though threatened with violence by the audience at times.

Other cast members were excellent and the fine directing hand of John Brebner was ever present.

Mood music by Leonard Jared on the appropriately tiny piano did much to heighten the enjoyment as did the never-ending changing of backdrops done by Bob Gumpert.

A series of oltos preceding the main production were also excellent, especially a dialogue in unison by the Burns twins and excellent barber shop music by "The San Rafaelers."

"The Drunkard" plays tonight and every Friday and Saturday through Sept. 7. Curtain is at 8:30.

S. F. Youth Killed In Car Stolen Here

A 17-year-old San Francisco youth was killed in San Francisco today when the stolen car he was driving crashed into a light standard and burst into fire.

Police said the car was stolen from William Spargur of 98 Bothin road, Fairfax.

The boy, Gordon Manning, was trying to escape pursuing police. Policeman James Hicks had spotted the car as stolen and approached it with siren and red light on. Manning picked up speed and hit a light standard at Third and Twenty Fourth streets.

A companion, James Bleivins, 17, of San Francisco, was critically injured.

The first floor of the two-story, older-style house was gutted, firemen said. The second floor was undamaged except for heat blisters.

Firemen finished mopping up operations by 11:30 p.m.

Kahn was the center of a tenure controversy three years ago while a teacher in the Mill Valley School District. Denied tenure, he subsequently took a teaching job in San Francisco.

The Kahns were moving to their new house from 71 Berkeley avenue, San Anselmo.

Suspect In Bad Checks Booked

John William Steckter, 35, of 240 Bayview street, San Rafael, was booked last night on two charges of writing bad checks. He was bailed out for $1,500 and is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court on Tuesday afternoon.

A warrant of arrest for Steckter, served by San Rafael Police, was on the complaint of the Mill Valley Police Department. Mill Valley Police said Steckter passed a bad check for $40 on May 16 and one for $50 on May 17 at different outlets of Del's Liquor Store in Mill Valley.

BUT, DONNA, ISN'T THAT THE IDEA?

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Striptease dancer Donna Salado, 24, says she won't be able to keep an engagement in Yuma, Ariz., because a thief rifled her car of $1,000 worth of capes and dresses she uses in her act.

"I just don't have a thing to wear," she complained.

Physician Booked As Drunk Driver

A 44-year-old Sausalito physician, John Desmond Walsh of Gate 5, Marinship, was booked at the county jail early today on a charge of drunken driving. Sausalito police reported Dr. Walsh's car came to a halt unexpectedly in the 2100 block of Bridgeway at 2:15 a.m. today and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Leonard Wayne Jared, 29, of 5 Denton court, Tiburon.

Jared suffered a cut on his lips and a couple of chipped teeth, he told police, but refused emergency treatment. His passenger, Stephan Binion, 34, was apparently uninjured. Sgt. David Cooper and Officer Peter Lampros of Sausalito police investigated the accident. Both cars involved were north-bound on Bridgeway.

Commencement At Dominican

Degrees of bachelor of science and bachelor of arts were to be given to 58 graduates at Dominican College commencement exercises scheduled for 3 p.m. today. Teaching credentials were to go to 32 more candidates.

Two of the seniors, Susan Rigsbee of Kentfield and Caroline Gisler of San Francisco, were to be graduated "maxima cum laude."

Most Rev. Hugh A. Donohoe, auxiliary bishop of San Francisco, was to confer the degrees. His brother, Very Rev. Patrick A. Donohoe, president of University of Santa Clara, was to give the graduation address.

State To Change Traffic Routes For Highway Work

Several traffic changes will be made on Monday along State Sign Route 17 where freeway construction is in progress between the San Quentin wye overcrossing at the southern limits of San Rafael and the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

J. P. Sinclair, assistant state highway engineer, said both directions of traffic will be shifted to the two new east-bound freeway lanes between Simms street and Sir Francis Drake boulevard to permit reconstruction of the old highway through the tidelands, as well as completion of other ramps and connections. It is expected the routing will be used for about four weeks, he said.

At the same time the southern half of the diamond type interchange at Bellam boulevard will be placed in service.

HOUSING

each of the 550 units being constructed is $13,878.

Project officer William S. Tsuchida, who is also an architect, said he feels that superior living quarters are being provided in spite of the high cost of frame construction in Marin. The relative cost index in three regions shows New York 150.4, St. Louis 162.7, and San Francisco (which includes Marin) 174.3, with price increases figured from 1939 as the base year for 100.

Many families will come and go from these houses over the years, and moving is hard on both house and people. Furnishing of basic equipment and standard installation such as washers, dryers and refrigerators, becomes an economy over a long period. Prime quality basic material in simple design is a further aid to economy in maintenance.

The 213-acre site has presented problems for building, but the unevenness has been included in the planning and a more interesting looking development is the result.

Exterior finishes are stucco and will be in various hues identified by California Stucco Institute with such names as caenstone, limestone, desert sand and rosewood. A new million-gallon water tank on the hill will loop in with the air base system for water supply. Sewer connections are with the Novato Sanitary District.

The project is divided into four parcels totaling 330 units for airman occupancy and 220 for officers. Total number of buildings is 220, with nine different plans. The smallest unit, airman two-bedroom, is 950 square feet, and the largest is the three or four-bedroom officer's quarters with 1,400 square feet.

Seven competitive inquiries were received for construction. Architect-engineers are Norberg, Coleman, Wilsey and Ham, a joint venture. Prime contractor is Murray-Sanders Associates in a joint venture with George A. Fuller Co. Fuller was the biggest contractor in the world last year. The firm built the United Nations building and Lever House in New York. This is their first venture in housing.

Pony League Play Opens Tomorrow

The seven teams of the North Marin Pony League will have their parade and opening day ceremonies tomorrow at 1 p.m. in Novato.

The parade will form at the west end of Grant avenue and proceed down Grant to Simmons lane, then to McIntosh Field for the opening game of the season.

Big Marin Tax Increase Shows Need For Economy

This time of year is budget time for government.

In Sacramento the Legislature is wrestling with a two billion 222 million dollar budget for California—the largest in history.

In San Rafael, the Board of Supervisors is awaiting the first public hearing on a budget exceeding 12 million dollars for Marin, the largest in history.

Practically every city, every school district and every fire, sanitation, flood control, recreation or other district is finding the same thing—it's going to cost more than ever to run government during the next fiscal year.

This alone should, and probably does, cause them concern. But statistics just compiled by California Taxpayers Association should cause them to sharpen their pencils even sharper.

The statistics are these:

In the five years between fiscal 1953-54 and 1958-59, the total property tax levy per person in Marin County increased 67.6 per cent. That was the seventh highest per capita increase in the entire state. The statewide average was 47.1 per cent.

The tax group pointed out each Marin resident had to pay only $71.67 in property taxes five years ago as compared with $120.09 this year.

Other counties showed big gains too, but only six of the 58 counties in the state showed a greater per centage increase.

Not only that, but Marin soared up the tax ladder in the total amount paid by each resident. Five years ago Marin was nestled well down the list, in 50th place in the state. But the whopping increase since then has jumped us up to the middle of the taxpayers, in 30th place. We've moved ahead of 19 other counties in total tax levy.

It would scarcely be fair, however, for irate taxpayers to converge on our supervisors with complaints, although we hope the supervisors too will be frugal. The same tax organization only a month or so ago found that Marin's basic tax rate for county services is eighth lowest in the state.

Thus it behooves every taxing unit, big and small, to double check its next year's budget to try to curb these big increases. If each one could reduce its budget even slightly, or at least not raise it, perhaps we can stem the headlong rush we are making toward the top of the taxing statistics.

And it's up to the individual taxpayers to see that this is done, both by careful surveillance and by not demanding new services.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

THE ENGINEER GOT LOST

An engineer in England stopped his train recently and walked back through the cars frankly announcing to the passengers: "Sorry, folks, I'm lost."

The train, a Norwich-London express, had been derailed because of repairs being made on the mainline tracks. When the engineer found himself in unfamiliar territory, he felt that he should consider the safety of the several hundred persons on board his train, rather than continue without knowing where he was taking them. The problem was soon straightened out and passengers were on the way to their destinations.

Railway officials, embarrassed at first, admitted later that they were relieved to know that this faithful employee was willing to put himself in an unfavorable light to protect the best interests of the public.

Whenever you show consideration for the rights of others, especially if it puts you in an awkward position, you will be giving sure proof of a sincere desire to apply divine love to human affairs. The loss to you is slight but it means a gain that will endure for all eternity.

"Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends." (John 15:13)

Inspire me, O Holy Spirit, always to seek the good of others, even at considerable inconvenience to myself.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

With Three Weeks Remaining Legislature Is A Good Show

By CHAPIN DAY

Only three weeks remain in the 1959 session of the state legislature, and the rush is on.

Committees, strangled with impossible agendas, are beginning to give cursory consideration to matters which two months ago would have undergone searching examination.

Committee chairmen are becoming crisp and frayed. Members are obviously tired, particularly of bills which have come before them for hearing after hearing and are still undecided.

The result is that committee meetings are a fine spectator sport. We recommend them as the best free show in the state right now.

The senators, under legislative joint rules, can only consider their own bills until next Thursday, unless they change the rules. The assemblymen have five extra days to consider their own bills. Then both houses must concentrate on the other fellows' bills. All work must stop three weeks from last midnight. That's what the voters said in Proposition 9 last November. And they're not allowed to stop the clock, the way they used to in order to prolong a session.

THERE ARE PLENTY of laughs going around too. The solons are joking and kidding every chance they get, trying to relieve some of the building tension. Even some of the stories from earlier in the session are being revived for a snicker.

Like the post card Senator Donald Grunsky of Watsonville received from Los Angeles. It said:

"Dear Sen. Grunsky: I addressed this some days ago when some action or statement appeared in the press. I forgot what it was, but I highly approved at the time so I am sending this along as you undoubtedly know to what I refer. It is gratifying to sometimes learn of some sound policy being urged by a legislator."

Or again, a member of the Assembly who, after the debate on a moratorium for the death penalty, was approached by a lady voter. The conversation went something like this:

"Mr. Assemblyman, that speech was superfluous, simply superfluous! You ought to have it published."

"I've been thinking of publishing it," the Assemblyman replied, "posthumously."

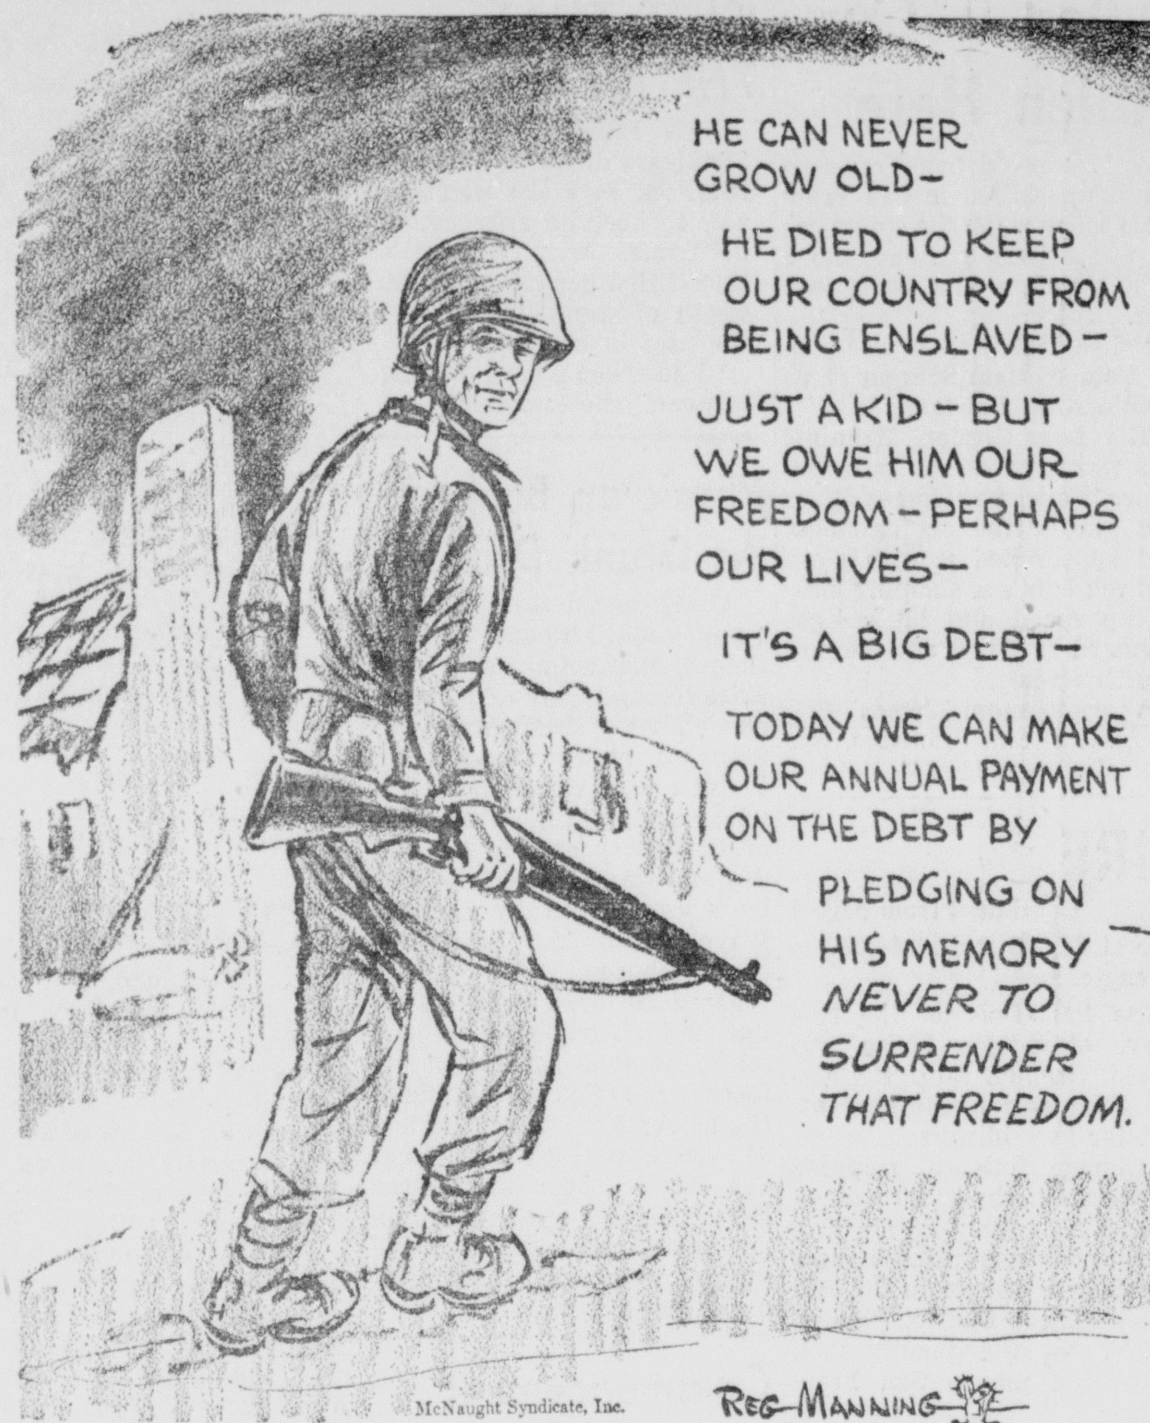

"Good!" declared the lady as she bounced off, "the sooner the better."

Labor Bill In Such Bad Shape

Passage This Year Seems Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The labor control bill, given a big sendoff by the Senate, is in sad shape now.

In the Senate on April 25 it got about the fattest endorsement any measure could hope for, short of a unanimous vote. The vote was 90-1.

Since both houses have to vote for a measure before it can become law, the Senate-passed bill went over to the House for action. There the Labor Committee held, and is still holding, hearings.

A massacre began:

1. PRESIDENT Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell wanted the Senate bill tightened up.

2. Big Labor and Big Business both came out against it: labor because it says the bill is too tough, business because it thinks the bill isn't tough enough.

3. The 30 members of the House committee are reportedly split every which way on the kind of bill they think is needed.

So if some kind of labor control bill ever gets out of the committee for House action — chances are it won't — it's pretty certain any bill passed by the House will be different from the one the Senate blessed.

That would require House and Senate to get together and compromise on a single bill, since no bill can become law unless both houses agree on every detail.

SUCH A COMPROMISED agreement might be impossible to get before Congress quits this summer for the year.

Eisenhower and Mitchell want the House to include provisions left out by the Senate: to deal with blackmail picketing and secondary boycotts.

The AFL-CIO called the Senate bill a mess and a monstrosity. Its president, George Meany, said his organization would support legislation it considered appropriate for helping unions curb corruption.

But he said amendments written into the labor bill in the Senate would hurt union activity and hinder instead of encouraging democratic union procedures.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Assn. of Manufacturers said the Senate bill "fails woefully, in the opinion of experts, to meet the desperate need for curbing the monopoly power of union bosses." It wants unions put under antitrust laws and barred from any form of compulsory union membership. And it wants picketing and boycott bans tightened.

William Barton, the Chamber's general counsel, said his organization frankly would prefer no changes in labor law this year to seeing the Senate bill become law.

He said it would fool people into thinking an effective anti-corruption measure had been passed when, he argued, such would not be true.

10 YEARS AGO

Gearhart Eisler, missing Communist, was found as a stowaway on the Polish liner Batory.

A two-year battle for national recognition in the United Nations culminated with Israel being admitted as the 59th member.

Two more week-end accidents on the three-lane "death strip" between San Rafael and Ignacio brought out the unanimous authority of the board of supervisors for Supervisor T. Fred Bagshaw to head a delegation to Sacramento and appear before the highway

EDITOR, Independent-Journal:

As president of The Thursday Musical Club I wish to express the club's appreciation for the excellent publicity you have afforded us during the past year and previous years.

Our club gives the opportunity to many young artists to appear before a group at a fee, which is the type of engagement they so sorely need to further their careers. The publicity you give our club programs is invaluable to these young people and benefits their careers greatly.

Ours is a cultural and social group that brings worthwhile entertainment to many Marin citizens throughout the county.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

An American publisher, motoring through Britain, stopped for the night at a pleasant little place that bore the encouraging name of "Writer's Motel." He liked it, too, and while checking out the next morning, he asked the clerk, "Where are all the writers? I didn't spot one the whole time I was here." "Oh," was the answer, "Mr. Writer has gone to London and Mrs. Writer is visiting a sick aunt."

A tourist, in New Mexico spotted an earthenware jar in an Indian souvenir depot and asked, "How much?" "Hundred dollars," answered the proprietor. "Nonsense!" exclaimed the tourist. "I'll give you 24 bucks for it."

"Listen, wise guy," growled the Indian, "bargains like Manhattan island you're not going to get any more!"

Rueful admission of long-suffering wife of famous Hollywood star: "I always can tell when my husband's lying. It's whenever his lips are moving."

A man applied for a job in a dress establishment on Seventh Avenue. "I'm known as a crackerjack salesman," he began hopefully. "Nothing doing," cried the boss. "You don't start in my firm as a salesman. You start as a partner like everybody else!"

San Rafael Firemen May Practice By Burning Down Old Buildings

You might see a spectacular fire right in downtown San Rafael one of these days, if city safety officials decide that such a fire would be safe.

On the north side of Third Street between Cijos and Lincoln are some old buildings that must be razed for another parking lot. They would be ideal for realistic fire fighting training. But they don't want it to get too realistic and ignite the rest of the town.

ANY RUMOR you might hear that sheriff's jailer Frank Kelly is being groomed for undersheriff is pure fantasy. There's no truth to it.

Kelly could have feelers in for top police posts in neighboring counties, but certainly not for the undersheriff's post.

A TEAM OF sharpshooters from San Rafael police have taken undisputed lead this week in the county.

The team, led by such experts as Art Fellows and Joe Brusatori, have nosed out Mobilgas of Mill Valley and the Filthy Five in the Tuesday night bowling league.

STANTON DELAPLANE is on the prospective list of persons to be called for Marin jury duty.

Should make quite a postcard.

THREE Marines from Petaluma, caught throwing beer cans from their car near Novato, were up before a Marin judge the other day.

The judge reasoned that the youths, 18, must have consumed some beer, at least the contents of the cans they threw out.

"They weren't empty; they were full ones," one Marine explained.

The judge and Deputy D. A. Harry Walters looked appalled. "You mean you were throwing out full cans?" They were.

"Twenty-five dollars fine each," said the judge. Moral of the story:

It doesn't pay to waste good beer.

SHERIFF'S DEPUTY Dick Argento, who makes like Rob-in Hood with bow and arrow, didn't do as well in the role of Lone Ranger.

One week ago, he rode his horse up a steep hill and urged it to take an almost perpendicular final leap to the crest. The ground gave way, and his horse fell backwards. Argento jumped away just in time to escape being crushed.

GARY GIACOMINI, the county recorder's son, won the election for sophomore president at St. Mary's. His campaign secret:

Door bell ringing from door to door in each of the college dormitories.

REV. HENRY GETZ of St. Paul's Episcopal explained "baptism" and "God parents" to youngsters the other Sunday. Then he asked:

"What is the role of God parents?" The reverend's son, Peter, was the only one who raised his hand. His answer: "To give silver."

THE LATE Bray Dickinson's series on old Marin railroads and ferryboats brings back memories to some of the old timers.

The account of how the ferry Sausalito ran aground on Angel Island in 1903 is still vivid in the mind of County Clerk George Jones. He was on that boat.

Jones recalls there was one drunk on board who hadn't sobered up by next morning and had to be lowered by rope into a lifeboat.

U.S. Exhibit In Moscow Will Let

Russians See, Question Celebrities

When the American exhibition opens in Moscow on July 4, a panel of distinguished U. S. citizens will set out to prove that the art of conversation has not been lost — if the Russian visitors are willing to question and to listen.

We don't yet know whether or how much the Russians will feel free to question and to listen, but we are going to find out by giving Soviet citizens an unexampled opportunity to ask anything they want of Americans qualified to answer. These Americans will not be government officials.

WHAT THE U. S. Information Agency is arranging is to have about 20 well-known figures from the arts, industry, journalism, science, and the professions, available during the six-week period of the exhibition — and ready to submit themselves to cross-examination from their Soviet counterparts or from other visitors.

The thing that would make the interviews perhaps not too agreeable to the Soviet officials is that they would be public. These conversations would go on live, closed-circuit color television (the Russians do not yet have color TV) and could be seen and heard on 20 TV viewing screens throughout the exhibition grounds.

Wouldn't it be fun to listen to a real good "conversation" on literary freedom between "Grapes of Wrath's" John Steinbeck and "Dr. Zhivago's" Boris Pasternak? I suspect the Russians would love it — if it would be allowed.

THE U. S. I. A. has not yet filled the quota of conversationalists it hopes to have in Moscow. Several have already arranged to be there and they include Carl Sandburg, the poet and Lincoln biographer; Edward Steichen, the dean of all photographers, whose famous exhibit, "The Family of Man" will be on view; Erwin D. Canham, who, as president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and editor of the "Christian Science Monitor," will deal with both business and newspaper questions; Walt Disney, who will be showing his updated Russian dialogue "Trip Across the U. S." in circarama, a 360-degree movie in the round; and Buckminster Fuller, the architect-engineer whose geodesic dome is 79 feet high, 200 feet in diameter, seating an audience of 5,000, will be the focal point of the exhibition.

It is easy to think of others who would interest and intrigue the fair-goers. David McDonald, president of Steel Workers of America, has said he would like to attend — and that would be good. Since two Soviet cartoonists attended the annual convention of U. S. editorial cartoonists last year, it would be highly appropriate for the "Washington Post's" Herblock to be on hand explaining how and why he can be pointedly critical of President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev at the same time.

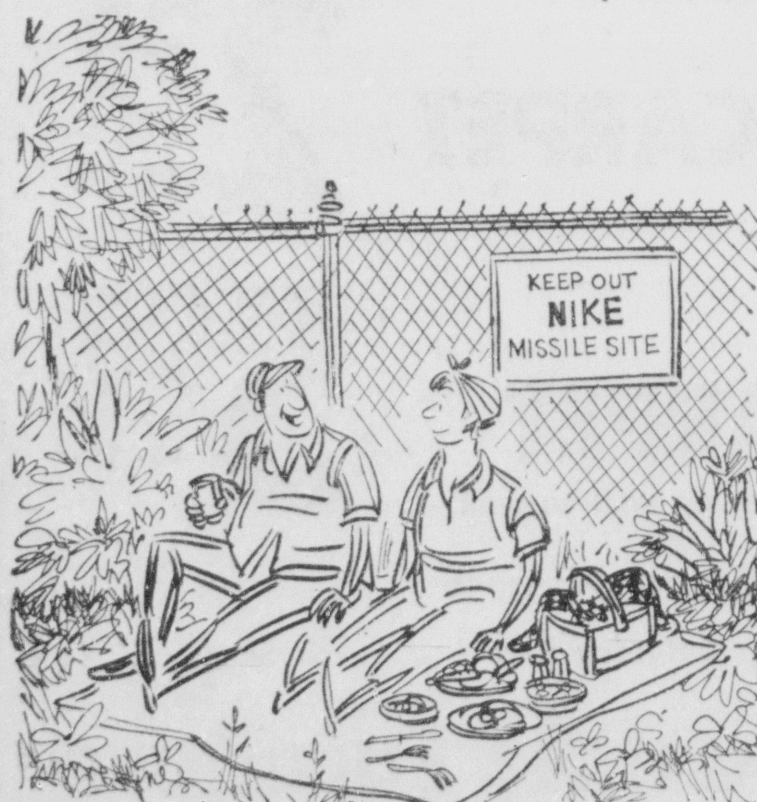

LAWYER JOSEPH WELCH of Boston would be a good representative of the legal profession. Charles S. Rhyne, past president of the American Bar Association, might stir up a little Soviet support — or, at least curiosity — for his crusade for "world peace through law" designed to put the World Court to better use. Henry Ford, III, whose family name is esteemed in Russia, and young Charles Percy, of Chicago's Bell and Howell, would be excellent industrial representatives.

The U. S. panelists will be their own spokesmen. They won't even get their fare paid to Moscow.

If the Moscow exhibition is not too risky a public exposure of this interest on the part of the Soviet public, it should pay good dividends in a new kind of people-to-people contact.

CLERGYMEN GREET GUEST—Two Marin clergymen chat with Dr. Henry F. Wind (right) as he signs guest register in Lutheran welfare exhibit at National Conference of Social Work convention in San Francisco. They are Rev. Robert K. Menzel (left), pastor of

Noted Guest To Speak At Peace Lutheran

A nationally known figure in the field of Protestant social welfare, Dr. Henry F. Wind of St. Louis, Mo., will be the guest speaker tomorrow at Peace Lutheran Church, Mill Valley. Dr. Wind is executive secretary of the board for social welfare of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, with which four Marin County Lutheran congregations are affiliated.

Dr. Wind, a pioneer in the movement to raise the standards of church-related social welfare agencies and institutions in America, is the author of several books.

Peace Lutheran's pastor, Rev. Robert K. Menzel, said Dr. Wind will preach only at the 11 a.m. service. The regular 8:30 a.m. matins service will be conducted as usual.

Rev. Menzel spent a year of theological internship under Dr. Wind when the latter was director of the Lutheran Service Society in Buffalo, N. Y. In the Bay Area to attend the National Conference on Social Work convention, Dr. Wind and his wife will spend two weeks in Mill Valley. They are house guests of Rev. Gustav E. Kirchner, pastor emeritus of St. Paulus Lutheran Church in San Francisco.

Services Will Feature Choir

The treble choir of Trinity Lutheran Church in San Rafael will be featured in the 10:30 a.m. service tomorrow in a program entitled "The Church Year in Song."

Selections from the various festivals of the Christian year including Christmas and Easter anthems, will be included. Appropriate prayers, Scripture readings and a sermon will be presented by Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger, pastor. Mrs. Lloyd Casselman will direct the choir and Mrs. O. F. Liebkind, organist.

The regular 9 a.m. service will be held as usual.

Scholarships Given

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Thirty-five "Martin Luther" Scholarships, totaling $43,550, have been granted by the National Lutheran Educational Conference for 1959-60 to graduate students working toward higher degrees and teaching posts at Lutheran schools.

Silent Catholics

WHY don't Catholics speak up in ACLU and other "public" forums? When will we have Catholic forums? Why does the Bay Area press rarely print a Catholic book review or letter? Get the answers in "Judgment By Default." It's another Paul Brindel feature in the June Way of St. Francis. Buy it at St. Raphael's, St. Rita's or Novato Greyhound, Or, 25c to 109 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, 2.

Retired Missionaries To Speak June 7

A retired missionary couple who worked in India and Pakistan will be special speakers June 7 at the Novato Presbyterian Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Lucas of Berkeley will speak after a potluck dinner scheduled for 6 p.m. Also speaking will be William Snyder, formerly a teacher at a Presbyterian boys school in Lebanon, and Dr. Harriet Hanson of San Francisco, who soon will leave for missionary service in Thailand.

The four will hold a panel discussion on missionary work, in which youth of the church will also take part.

Dr. Lucas was born in India, the son of missionaries. He was educated in the United States and returned to his birthplace as a missionary in 1908. An authority on Indian Economics, he held distinguished positions in education, college administration and on government commissions and in relief work until his retirement in 1952.

Mrs. Lucas, widely known in India for her art work, is a daughter of Sir James Ewing, a Presbyterian missionary to India who was knighted for his service in missionary work and education.

Witnesses To Convene

D. E. Hull, presiding minister of Jehovah's Witnesses here, announced today that the San Rafael congregation of Witnesses has been invited to attend a four-day convention June 25-28 at the San Joaquin County Fairgrounds in Stockton. Hull will head the local delegation of about 50 persons.

The convention is one of 28 arranged for the United States and Canada this summer by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Brooklyn, New York for Jehovah's Witnesses.

"The purpose of the meeting, Hull said, 'is to provide additional Bible instruction for the Witnesses and to enable them to apply Bible principles more fully to their everyday lives and activities.'

Choir Recognition Day Tomorrow

"Choir Recognition Sunday" will be tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo. A story in last Saturday's Independent-Journal church page incorrectly said the special day was scheduled for last Sunday.

Five choirs will participate in the morning services tomorrow—the Chancel, Carol, Cherub, Calvin and Westminster Choirs, together with the Choral Bells of Marin.

Church Quizzes Members On Racial Attitude

The 400 members of the Novato Presbyterian Church are being asked to answer some ticklish questions on racial prejudice.

A questionnaire, sent this week by the church's committee on social education and action, asks such questions as these:

Would you avoid the services of a local Negro physician?

Would you object if your employer hired a Negro to supervise you?

Would you object to your child dating a Negro?

MAY BE MADE PUBLIC
Dr. Edward L. Kessel, a professor at San Francisco State College and chairman of the church committee, said today that results of the questionnaire may be made public when the committee next meets June 26. If so, it will be the first time such a survey by a church has been made public in Marin County, "to my knowledge," said Dr. Kessel.

Persons answering the questions will remain anonymous to insure honest and objective answers, he said.

Primary purposes of the questionnaire, he reported, are to ascertain whether church members are willing to: (1) accept and support the official stand of the Presbytery of the Redwoods (that all Presbyterians in Marin County favor a permanent and official commission on human relations for the county); and (2) to support the Presbyterian Church's official policy to work for a non-segregated society as well as for a non-segregated church.

ORIGINAL QUERIES

Many of the questions, said Dr. Kessel, were taken from a similar questionnaire distributed by the Mill Valley Community Church. But many others are original with the committee, he said. "We have worked long and hard to prepare it."

Only questions pertaining to feelings about association with Negroes were put into the questionnaire, rather than bringing in other minority races. "We felt that by taking the most extreme cases, we would get more complete answers," said Dr. Kessel.

"It is my personal feeling that this poll will have a great value to the county at large as well as to our church."

Fund Canvass Under Way

A financial canvass to raise funds for remodeling and expansion of church property is under way among the congregation of the San Anselmo Church of the Nazarene.

The canvass was opened at a testimonial dinner Wednesday at the Woodland's restaurant in Kentfield.

Directing the canvass is Rev. Ted Lancaster, pastor of Trinity Church of the Nazarene in Fresno. Members of the canvass committee include George Tucker, chairman; Barron Haney, Kinne Terrell, Dale Witt, James Harrell and Bob Wild.

As keynote speaker at the dinner, the church's pastor, Rev. Harold Bonner, said: "Our greatest concern is not alone what the church needs but also what we as individuals must give if our faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is to be redemptive to ourselves, our church and the world."

Ban Reversed

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—The University of Missouri has rescinded an old regulation prohibiting religious services on any of the institution's property.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

By JIM GUMARTIN

College Or Professional Baseball? Marin Star Makes Big Decision

You're an outstanding high school baseball player and graduation time is approaching. And you're faced with quite a problem.

Professional baseball scouts are waving attractive bonus offers under your nose while at the same time several major universities are offering you a free education in exchange for your athletic talents.

In these days of the fast buck, fancy sports cars and flashy clothes, major league talent hunters, armed with cold cash, are mighty persuasive. At the age of 17 or 18 several thousand dollars look much prettier than college and its homework and final exams.

"Who needs brains," you say to yourself, "when I can knock a ball out of the park without thinking twice." Mickey Mantle and Babe Ruth never went to college, you keep saying to yourself. And you're right, but also you may not be another Mickey Mantle or Babe Ruth.

THERE have been countless high school stars who thought themselves big league timber and today you can see them in jobs other than baseball—quite disillusioned. They shunned the chance to go to college in favor of pro baseball, couldn't cut the mustard and had nothing to fall back on. Same sad story.

John Boccabella is 17 years old, about to graduate from Marin Catholic High and an odds-on favorite to make good in major league baseball.

It's no secret major league scouts have Big Jaw on their lists and are willing to part with some cash for his signature. Also, it's no secret several universities are willing to give him a free ride through four years of study—and athletics. John also is quite a football player, so any college could get double dividends from his talents.

RIGHT NOW Boccabella has his mind made up. He can wait for the fancy car and clothes and bank account. He wants an education. His father, Dom, says John probably will accept a scholarship to Santa Clara.

True, Santa Clara has no football team, but Boccabella says he's through with the gridiron. The Broncos have a fine baseball program so he won't lose his batting and fielding touch while tackling the books. College baseball is about comparable to Class B professional ball. Good grooming for the big leagues, as Sam Chapman and Jackie Jensen, among many others, will testify.

BOCCABELLA stands about 6-2 and tips the Toledo at a

Cardinals 'Rob' Giants With Great Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An unbeatable baseball combination—defense, pitching and home runs—paid off for the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

Outfielders Bill White, Curt Flood and Bobby Gene Smith provided spectacular runs-saving catches in the Cards' 4-2 victory over second place San Francisco.

Wilmer Mizell, the lefty from Vinegar Bend, Ala., pitched two-hit ball for seven innings, allowed two more in the eighth and three in the ninth before yielding to Lindy McDaniel. It was Mizell's sixth straight triumph and only the second Card victory over the Giants in nine games.

Joe Cunningham and Hal Smith provided the home runs. The 20,199 in Seals Stadium were treated to a brilliant display of outfield work.

In the sixth, with a man on and no score, Willie Mays shot a drive headed for the left field seats. White leaped at least two feet above the eight-foot fence and came down with the ball.

In the eighth with the score 4-0, pinch-hitter Leon Wagner hit what looked like a two-run homer into the right field seats. Flood ran like a deer, crashed into the fence, but came up with the ball. Mays doubled in a run and then it was Smith's turn. With two on, he raced to the right field corner to rob Orlando Cepeda of an almost sure extra base blow.

"There's only one other man in the majors who could have made the catch Flood made," said Cardinal Manager Solly Hemus.

"That would be Mays." "Mays' hit was a sure home run," claimed Giant Manager Bill Rigney. "They also robbed Wagner and Cepeda."

The Chicago Cubs arrived for a Memorial Day and Sunday two-game set. Lefty Mike McCormick (2-3) was the Giant pitcher, Bob Anderson (3-3) the Cub starter. Rigney put third baseman Jim Davenport back in the starting lineup. A batting slump benched him for four games.

Mizell and Jack Sanford had an 0-0 game going until the seventh when Cunningham homered. The Cards added another on four singles. Smith homered in the eighth after Cunningham walked.

The Giants got a run in the eighth on a single by Bob Schmidt and Mays' double and another in the ninth on a Jackie Brandt double and singles by Daryl Spencer and Andre Rogers.

Deer Seasons Changed; Archery Hunt Ousted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Fish and Game Commission has changed the state's early and late deer seasons in view of the potential fire hazard this year.

Commissioners yesterday also decided to abolish the special archery season in existence in California since 1947. Archers still will be able to use their bows, but must compete during the regular season with rifleman.

The coastal deer season, extended one week over the Department's recommendation, will begin July 25 and close Sept. 13. The late inland season will be Sept. 26-Nov. 1.

Recommendations of State Natural Resources Director DeWitt Nelson influenced the season juggling. Nelson appealed to the commissioners to make the seasons as late as possible

In a hole-in-one contest, Mrs. Abramson got closest to an ace followed by Mrs. Joseph Wittemeier and Mrs. W. B. Smilie. Mrs. Smilie was the winner of the low net of the month award with an average net of 65½.

LOS ANGELES — Art Aragon, 151½, Los Angeles, knocked out Rocky Caballero, 154½, Austin, Tex., 3.

JOHNSON IN EASY VICTORY OVER VALDES

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Alonzo Johnson looks like a man who is going to force his way into the rankings in the heavyweight division.

The 24-year-old boxer from Braddock, Pa., a Pittsburgh suburb, won going away last night from big Nino Valdes, the Cuban self-proclaimed "pro champion of the world." Big Nino stopped by Charlie Powell in Miami Beach in March, lost a unanimous decision to Johnson at Madison Square Garden.

Although Valdes at 210½ had an edge of 24½ pounds on Johnson, who scaled 185½, he let his younger opponent keep on top of him and shove him around the ring. Johnson now has won 12 straight and 16 of 17 pro starts.

Judge Nick Gamboli scored it 8-1-1 and both Judge Tony Castellano and Referee Al Berl had it 6-3-1, all for Johnson. The AP card agreed with Gamboli's.

Snidow Wins Crown With Mighty Heave Of 176-1

A San Rafael High School student last night climaxed a brilliant prep athletic career by winning the California Interscholastic Federation discus championship in the annual state track and field meet at Bakersfield.

He is Ron Snidow, 17-year-old son of Air Force Master Sergeant and Mrs. Ralph Snidow of Ignacio.

With a crowd of 12,000 watching the performance, Snidow smashed the CIF record with a mighty throw of 176 feet 1 inch. The former record with the 3-pound, 9-ounce platter was 173-¾ set in 1957 by Don Bell of Alameda.

Snidow, 6 foot 2½-inch, 210-pounder, set the record on the fourth of his seven official throws, according to Coach Bob Lincoln. His second best distance was 172 feet.

The 176-1 performance, according to reports, was the second best in the United States this year.

Last night's feat marked the climax of a gallant comeback by the three-sports hero of San Rafael. Earlier in the season he hit a career best of 170-1½, but a throat infection snapped his strength and cut his distance considerably. After he won the North Bay League championship in the discus and shot, Snidow dropped to second in the North Coast Section qualifying and finals meets.

Doug Schoenewetter of Sunnyvale's Fremont High, who beat Snidow last week in the NCS finals at Berkeley, placed second last night at 173. They were followed by Ted Faggart of Porterville (168-1½); Alex Darnes of San Francisco's Polytechnic (159-10½); Bill Benneyan of Fresno (159-7) and Andy Alkire of Montgomery in Santa Rosa 158-8.

Snidow thus became the second athlete in San Rafael H.S. history to win a state track championship. Last S.R. star to win the top prize was Roger Lane in 1939 when he won the half mile in 1 minute, 57.5 seconds.

While last night marked the last official high school sports event for Snidow, he still has two all-star football appearances to make this summer as an end on the North team against the South in the Los Angeles Shrine classic and on the West squad in the East-West game in San Francisco. These teams are composed of graduating seniors.

Snidow, who sparked San Rafael to the NBL championship, was selected All-Northern California lineman of the year, All-NBL and Marin County's player of the year.

He also starred in basketball for San Rafael's championship team.

The big senior has received several scholarship offers from major universities, but has not yet decided on which school to attend.

Another highlight of last night's meet was a national prep record mile run of 4:11.0 by Dale Story of Orange.

Adcock Hero As Braves Boost Lead

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

When it comes to spectacular hitting, Joe Adcock's your man.

The big Milwaukee first baseman was the last slugger to wallop four home runs in one game in the majors, jolting them against the Dodgers back in Brooklyn in 1954.

He also was the only hitter ever to put a home run over the left field stands in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field, back in 1956. Three years earlier he had become the only power guy in a regularly scheduled major league game ever to reach the center field seats at New York's Polo Grounds, belting a 475-foot drive.

Then, just last Tuesday, it was Adcock who hit the rbi, rule-book double for the Braves' lone hit as they beat Pittsburgh and Harvey Haddix 1-0 in 13 innings.

Last night, Adcock did it again. This time he reached across the plate to hit a wide pitch as Philadelphia right-hander Gene Conley tried to give him an intentional walk in the ninth. The ball bounced to second base, enabling Hank Aaron to come sliding home for a 6-5 victory that gave Milwaukee a three-game lead in the National League race.

St. Louis took care of the second-place San Francisco Giants 4-2. The Chicago Cubs claimed third place by beating Los Angeles 9-4 after Cincinnati had spilled Pittsburgh 8-5.

In the American League, idle Cleveland regained a one-game edge as Detroit defeated Chicago's second-place White Sox 4-1. New York put third-place Baltimore two games behind by beating the Orioles 5-2. And Washington defeated Boston 7-6.

Conley (2-2) who had shut out his former mates on six hits Sunday, gave up 13 hits and was tagged for a triple by Aaron in the ninth.

Senate Approves Brown's Big Water Program

Assembly Passes Income Tax Boost, 'Unfreezes' Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown today cleared three important victories in the Legislature.

Perhaps the greatest administration triumph was winning a 25-12 vote of approval in the Senate for his $1,750,000,000 water program.

But almost as important was the Assembly's action yesterday in voting final approval to the administration's bill to increase personal income taxes by $71,400,000 a year.

A third Brown victory came when the lower house "unfroze" the governor's $2,223,000,000 budget and sent it to the Senate intact. Left in the budget as an expression of the south's good faith in working for a water program was $3 million earmarked for water project construction and land acquisition.

The Senate ended the biggest debate of the current session, a talkathon that lasted for two days, by finally approving the governor's water bill despite determined, last-ditch northern opposition.

NO PARTY LINES

The final roll call late yesterday was not divided along party lines. Indeed, Republicans voted more solidly with the Democratic governor on the water issue than did Democratic senators.

Nine Republicans, including Marin's Sen. John F. McCarthy, voted for the water bill and only two opposed it. Sixteen Democrats stayed with the governor but 10 voted against the measure.

Even though they lost the war, the northern senators won several battles during the weeks of negotiation, hearings and debate on the water bill. In the form it finally left the Senate, SB1106 authored by Sen. Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno) contains almost 40 amendments, most of them inserted in the bill at the north's insistence.

ASSEMBLY'S TURN

Starting next week, it will be the southern-dominated Assembly's turn to give SB1106 a going-over.

In other major action yesterday, the Assembly voted 48-23 to adopt Senate amendments to the income tax bill and sent the measure to the governor.

It is one of the bills which make up his 256-million-dollar tax program which he said is vitally necessary to balance the 1959-60 budget.

Wearry from a hard week of debate over taxes, the budget and water, both houses decided to take the Memorial Day weekend off. It probably will be the last two-day recess before the session ends on June 19.

GI ROMANCE CULMINATES TODAY WITH WEDDING AT ARMY CHAPEL

In what is reported to be only the second wedding ever performed in the Ft. Barry chapel, Capt. Harold A. Clark, post chaplain, this afternoon was to marry two young Army people whose romance started within a stone's throw of where they will take the vows.

It began when Pfc. Dorothy Jean Williams, 21-year-old clerk-typist in the office of Sgt. Major Gilbert White, met Sp/4c Robert S. Smith, 23, who is assigned to the operations room as a plotter in the Nike headquarters at Ft. Barry.

She entered the Army in April of last year from Stringer, Miss. Smith has been in the service a year longer, coming from Johnson City, Tenn.

They met last Christmas.

They plan to visit their hometowns during a 30-day leave after the ceremony.

Judge Rules Building Permit Be Revoked

A building permit issued for Parnow Bros. apartment building at 620 Canal street in San Rafael will have to be revoked because the building will be higher than the 34 feet allowed by the city planning commission last December.

This was the ruling handed down by Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court yesterday.

But the decision is not expected to block the construction of the building because the planning commission last Tuesday granted another variance, permitting the height to go to 36 feet.

San Rafael Newport Co., represented by attorney David Baty, charged that the building is in violation because it is three stories instead of two, and the height is more than 34 feet.

The judge decided that three stories had been approved by the planning commission, but the height was about a foot more than the 34 feet granted.

E. Warren McGuire, deputy county counsel, who defended the city and Building Inspector Clifford Monk, said that a new permit can probably be issued to allow the construction, if the city council concurs in the new 36-foot height.

Legion Post Elects In San Anselmo

Douglas McMurry of 199 Butterfield road, San Anselmo, has been elected commander of San Anselmo American Legion Post 179, succeeding Lawrence R. Schlosser of Fairfax.

McMurry and other officers will be installed June 8 at the Legion Log Cabin in San Anselmo. Installation will be by the Marin 40 et 8 Society.

Others elected were William Harrington, first vice commander; Patrick W. Pollock, second vice commander, and Walter Berta, sergeant-at-arms. Re-elected were Jean Lestang, finance officer; Ray Greenberg, chaplain, and Barney Clancy, historian.

Named to the executive board were Robert Slyter, Richard Wagner and Joseph Picinich.

Span Board Gets Plan Endorsement

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday referred to committee the Marin Board of Supervisors' endorsement of a tourist information center at Vista Point.

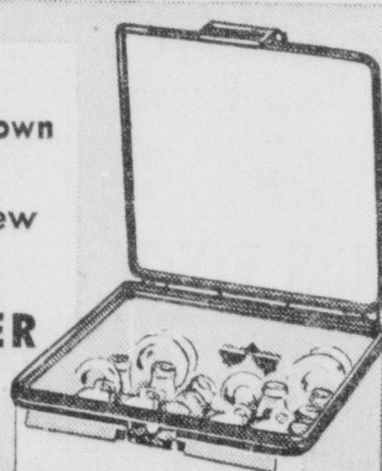

A letter from County Clerk George S. Jones enclosing the resolution endorsing the project was referred to the bridge's building and operating committee.

At the request of Marin Director Leland Murphy, the district will answer Jones's letter and explain that the information center project already is being considered by the committee.

MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

'Shay,' He Mumbled, 'You Gotta Kind Face, Lemme Tell You ...'

THERE WAS this fellow sitting at Leo's and he was about the saddest sack I have seen.

He was no tramp — that much you could say for him, but it looked like any minute he might begin the unhappy story of his life, or how his wife didn't appreciate him. In either case I didn't intend to be around when he started. All I wanted was a quick one and to blow. It wasn't quick enough.

"Shay," he mumbled through a double-on-the-rocks, "you gotta kind face an' I like kin' faces. Lemme tellya sump'n ..."

He had mournful eyes like a dog's, and as I am a pushover for dogs with mournful eyes I got stuck. I don't know what else to do with the story so you may as well listen. Besides, there could be a moral in it — I think.

Well, it seems some friend had given him an old pair of skis which he had admired. They were beat up, too short for his size and had old fashioned leather straps so worn and dried out it would have been a lot safer tying them on with clothesline.

STILL, CLARENCE — I think that was his name but the way he slurred over the word it could have been Clancy — anyway, Clarence or Clancy had never done any skiing and he figured this was a good time to begin. The Devil take the hindmost, and if the hindmost landed in the snow it should be soft enough not to hurt too much.

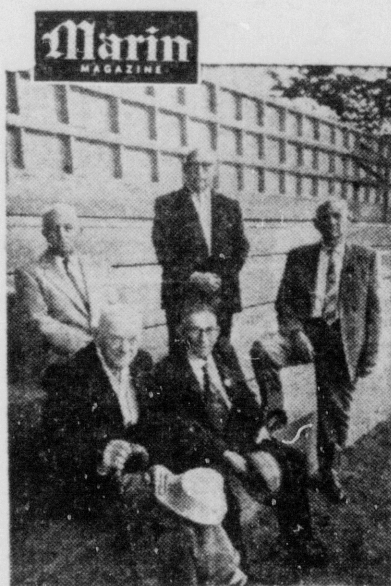

Now Clarence had no ski shoes, so he went out and bought some — the kind that are square-toed and notched in the heels.

"Good ones," he assured me. "Twenty-fi' bucks."

He also bought some ski poles, then there were ski pants, jacket and cap and some other stuff. This brought expenditures up to $95.

"My wife shaid if I was gonna ski, she was, too," said Clarence. "Sho we made 'nother trip to th' store and there went $120 more."

Later he got to looking over his wife's equipment and decided the skis his friend had given him weren't very good,

OLD VETS — Five of Marin's 12 veterans of the Spanish-American War pose for a Memorial Day portrait. Standing (center) is E. L. Keber, commander of John H. Harris Camp 18, USWV. so he turned them in on a new pair. The salesman also talked him into a ski rack to put on top of his car, and they took off for the Sierras.

AT THIS POINT the story became a little garbled because Clarence needed refueling, and I did the honors. When I got back on the beam he and his wife were in Reno. I guess they had not found skiing all it was cracked up to be — or maybe they did and that was the trouble. Anyway, they decided to try and recoup some of the $270 they were in the hole for a lost cause. I could see what was coming — the poor fools.

To make a simple story complicated, it didn't happen that way at all. They won the $270 and more — came out $480 ahead of expenses, including the ski equipment.

"Yuh shee?" said Clarence dolefully. "It jus' goes to showya."

I didn't, but I figured there must be more to it and ordered him another double-on-the-rocks, and took one myself. He downed his, and got off the stool on to his feet, albeit somewhat unsteadily, and made for the door.

"Hey, Clarence," I said, still mystified. "That isn't the end, is it? If you won all that money why are you so unhappy?"

Whoosh unhappy?" he drew himself up indignantly. "I've been tellin' thish story for three years an' it always worksh. Thanksh f'r th' drinks, mishter."

A sucker, am I? Listen — the guy just had a lucky ... it could have happened to any ... oh yeah, I see what you mean.

SPANISH WAR VETERAN REPORTS ON COMRADES

EDITOR, Marin Magazine:

May 22, 1959

The ambulant contingent of the John H. Harris Camp 18 U.S.W.V. watched the birdie under the supervision of your staff photographer today. The number of old soldiers able to move about under their own power varies from day to day. Until recently there were 10 stalwart men walking about the streets of our town. For the picture today we could muster only five. Your photographer wanted to know how old we were. We were distressed that he should think we were old. Besides when you spring that on us we at once become very coy. None will admit to be over eighty. (Confidentially, most are closer to ninety.)

Only 50 years ago 150 veterans of this camp foregathered monthly in San Rafael to swap yarns of Cuba, Philippines, and the Boxer Rebellion, and sing the song which the native Philippino thought was our National Anthem, "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight." Now alas but 22 remain, and of these but five seem to be ambulatory.

Our Comrade Emil Christensen turned in for taps for the last time last night, a poignant shock to most of us who had not known that he had been hospitalized. I tried to round him up for the picture today but could not find him. When I reached home I saw the account of his death in the Independent Journal. We shall salute him at Keaton's Mortuary for the last time Monday morning.

At the suggestion of your representative I have listed the names of those presently remaining on our roll call.

Charles Blum, 127, Ross street, San Rafael; H. R. Brown, 3200 Santa Rosa avenue, Santa Rosa; Thos. A. Brown, 2034 Fifth avenue, San Rafael; Francis E. Barry, 1300 Chase street, Novato; A. L. Frehe, 531 D. street, San Rafael; Paul O. Hoffman, 636 Silver street, San Francisco; A. D. Holbrook, Point Reyes Station; Herbert J. Hunt, 1331 Grand avenue, San Rafael; Patrick J. Kane, 664 Northern avenue, Mill Valley; Edward L. Keber, 242 Solano street, San Rafael; William P. Moher, 503 D street, San Rafael; John S. McGrath, Box 84, Bolinas; Maj. Robt. M. Martin, Apt. A, 14 Byrn Mawr, San Rafael; Capt. Frank Wilkerson, 1732 Lincoln avenue, San Rafael; Louis Reinhardt, 17 Park drive, San Anselmo; Edward H. Sage, 15 Park drive, San Anselmo; John R. Thompson, PO Box 182, Novato and Harry Whittaker, 580 Calle Arboleda, Novato.

Thanking you for the kindness, I am,

Yours truly,

'Glad I've Seen Life Both Ways'

Ruth Bowie White Grew Up In Affluence, Met Hard Times During The Depression

By Maybelle Speckmann

Mrs. Ralston White Bowie is widely known in the Bay area as a world traveler, patroness of the arts and, until a few years ago, owner of the historic Garden of Allah estate with its mansion on the slopes of Mt. Tamalpais above Mill Valley.

But it is doubtful that many know the extent of her life-long devotion to out-of-doors activities, such as horseback riding, hunting, swimming, tennis, hiking, bicycling and mountain climbing.

Only five years ago she walked, with a party of 10 led by an Italian marquis, 235 miles in the snow covered Alps over 10 high passes. And last summer she bicycled 500 miles in Colorado, where she and her husband, Dr. Robert Bowie, live during the summer months.

Smiling as she glanced up to the top of Mt. Tamalpais that looked a stone's throw from the living room window of their apartment at the Garden of Allah, Mrs. Bowie said, "I could climb a mountain all day, but I might drop a suitcase."

NEVER REALLY ILL in her life, she gives credit for her extraordinary stamina to out-door life and heredity from her father, Dr. William Christopher Boericke, Austrian born homeopathic physician, and her mother, who came from a strong, well known New England family.

Born in San Francisco, Ruth Boericke had a twin sister, Dorothy, now Mrs. Laurence Symmes of Scarsdale, New York, and five brothers, four of whom are living.

Residing in the Bay Area are Dr. Charles Boericke of Berkeley and Arthur Boericke, now of San Francisco, but who lived many years in Mill Valley, where he was in the real estate business. The others are William Fay Boericke of New York, a mining engineer, and Dr. Garth Boericke of Philadelphia.

THE BOERICKE FAMILY lived in a home at 1812 Washington street, San Francisco, designed by the famous architect Willis Polk, who later built the Garden of Allah.

Ruth and Dorothy began their education in Miss West's private school in the city. "Then," Mrs. Bowie said, "like many young ladies of those days, we were sent East to finishing schools, first to the Waltham School for Girls outside of Boston, and later, after a year spent traveling in Europe with our father, we finished our education at Briarcliff Manor on the Hudson River. Our mother had been educated there when it was known as Farmington.

"Our most exciting experience on the trip to Europe," Mrs. Bowie continued, "was seeing, while we were in Naples, the great eruption of Vesuvius which took place in 1906 simultaneously with the earthquake in San Francisco. We were so worried because our mother and five brothers were there."

THE TWINS made their social debut in 1909 and in 1910 Ruth married Ralston White, only son of the Lovell Whites of San Francisco. He attended the University of California and was a member of Phi Delta Gamma fraternity.

Lovell White, who was president of the San Francisco Savings Union Company, subsequently the American Trust Company, built the now historic home on Magee Avenue in Mill Valley. In connection with his activities with the Tamalpais Land and Water Company he was among those most active in the building of the old Mt. Tamalpais Railroad.

Though his father wanted him to become a banker, Ralston White was more interested in the Tamalpais Land and Water Company and was its president from 1910 until his death in 1943. Also he was vice president of the Mt. Tamalpais Railroad and director of the Mill Valley bank which is now the American Trust Company, as well as a member of the board of directors of this institution in San Francisco.

Young Ralston and his bride, after spending a honeymoon that included riding 400 miles horseback over the old Monterey trail, which is Highway 1 today, lived in the White home in Mill Valley while their mansion at the Garden of Allah was under construction.

PROFILE OF THE WEEK—The Garden of Allah in Mill Valley is the home of Dr. Robert Bowie and Mrs. Ralston White (Ruth) Bowie. Mrs. Bowie is known as a traveler and patroness of the arts. Few know, however, of her devotion to the out-of-doors, which include bicycling 5,000 miles in Europe, and 500 miles last summer!

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH is a story in itself, which has been told elsewhere, but it is interesting to learn how it was named.

"Ralston had recently read the famous book of that name," Mrs. Bowie explained, "and one day when he was surveying for the land and water company, he paused to look at the magnificent view and other natural beauties of the spot where the home stands and exclaimed, 'This is my Garden of Allah!'"

This it must forever be called, for the name is written into the deed to the property.

The young couple held open house in their beautiful home in 1915, the year of the Panama Pacific Exposition, and entertained many people from all over the country.

"We had many guests frequently in that era of gracious living when it was so easy to get Chinese cooks and maids," Mrs. Bowie reminisced.

AS WIFE OF an ardent lover of sports Ruth White often went hunting, fishing, swimming riding and hiking with her husband. "I shall never forget how proud Ralston was of the first duck I shot—he even had it stuffed."

When Ralston White enlisted as a private in the U.S. Army during World War I, his wife worked in San Francisco raising $100,000 for French widows and orphans, for which she received a medal and citation from the French Government. These are among her most prized mementos.

After the Armistice was signed, White came home from officers' training school at Fort Scott, and the couple resumed their idyllic life at the Garden of Allah.

From 1920 to 1927 the Whites made several trips abroad that included Japan, Egypt and European countries. At home Mrs. White was active in Sunday school work and for some time taught 19 little orphan boys at Sunny Hills. She also played a leading role in the Women's Homeopathic League and is at present its vice president.

Suddenly, when the great depression struck in 1929, the life of affluence vanished, and the Whites leased their beloved Garden of Allah and went to live in Munich, Germany.

"Though money was scarce, this was one of the happiest times of my life," Mrs. Bowie recalled. We lived the life of students, seeing opera two or three times a week and bicycling 5,000 miles in the seven years we lived abroad.

"AT ONE TIME we stayed in a bavarian castle for one dollar a day, and we lived during this period in Berlin, Leipsig, Paris Rome, Vienna and even rode our bicycles into London in 1937 to see the coronation of Edward VII before we went on through Ireland and Scotland."

Returning to Mill Valley in 1939, the Whites again lived at the Garden of Allah but were soon involved in the uproar of World War II.

While her husband was engaged in many volunteer activities, Ruth White did interceptor command work in the Sausalito hills, and helped pick hops and other produce in the farm emergency.

As a result of an overly strenuous life, White died in 1943 of a heart attack, and his widow persuaded nine members of her family to live with her in the great house until 1950. She busied herself with such charitable work over these years as sending 300 boxes to people she had known while living in Germany, who were almost destitute after the war.

Although the Whites had had no children, some were always there, particularly the three children of her twin sister, who spent most of their summer vacations at the Garden of Allah.

TWO ARE well known residents of Mill Valley, Mrs. John Bernard and her brother, Laurence M. Symmes Jr. The Barnards have two sons, Ralston White Barnard and Geoffrey Symmes Barnard; and the Symmes' children are Marilyn Fredrica, Anthony Garth and William Christopher Symmes, the latter named for his great grandfather, Dro Boericke.

In due time Mrs. White decided to make the Garden of Allah her husband's memorial and deeded it to the California Academy of Science in 1950, retaining an apartment for her own use. And when the Academy was unable to make full use of it, it joined with her in deeding it to the Northern California Conference of Congregational Churches for a retreat. It is now known as the Ralston White Memorial Retreat.

FREE TO TRAVEL again, Mrs. White took the previously mentioned walking tour of the Swiss Alps in 1954, for she had kept in condition as a member of the Sierra Club.

That same year she went to Rio de Janeiro, where she met Dr. Robert Bowie while he was attending a convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy. Homeopathy is the branch of medicine in which her eminent father had practiced for over 50 years, as well as her two brothers.

In 1955 Mrs. White and Dr. Bowie were married in the Swedenborgian church in San Francisco, since she and all her family are members.

Dr. Bowie is now retired, but maintains his home in Fort Morgan, Colorado, where he was a homeopathic physician for many years. During World War I he served as a surgeon in France.

The Bowies took their last big trip, a four months' round-the-world tour, in 1956.

"I'm glad I've seen life both ways," Mrs. Bowie concluded, "during the days of affluence and gracious living—and during the depression when every penny counted."

Rivalry In The Northwest

Competition Among The Giants Creates Merger And Results In NWP

(Editor's note: This is another in the series on railroads of the North Coast area by the late A. Bray Dickinson, Tomales historian. Today's chapter follows the ailing North Shore—nee North Pacific Coast Railroad through an earthquake and more financial shuffles.

By A. BRAY DICKINSON

During the first years of this century big transcontinental railroad companies were vying one another in reaching into new territory and in buying up every feeder line that they could lay their hands on. There were years of expansion and consolidation, for no one was shrewd enough to foretell the coming revolution in transportation. Nor would such a prophet have been listened to.

The Southern Pacific Company kept its "octopus" hold on transportation in California for many years but now was beset by two powerful rivals.

The Santa Fe had already penetrated the San Joaquin Valley from the south and reached San Francisco Bay at Point Richmond.

With an eye on the redwood forests of Northwestern California, this company purchased and consolidated a number of logging railroads in Humboldt and Mendocino Counties.

MANY RUMORS circulated that the Great Northern intended to come down the coast and that negotiations were going on for the purchase of the old Donahue road to obtain a terminal on San Francisco Bay.

As previously stated, A. W. Foster and associates bought the San Francisco and North Pacific, or the Donahue road, at a bankrupt sale in 1893, and under the name of California Northwestern Railway had built it into one of the best-paying short lines in the United States.

The Southern Pacific now quietly stepped in and obtained an option on this key road, thus blocking both rivals. No doubt pressure was put on Foster to obtain this option; quite simple it was to point out that this road would be in a tough spot if the Southern Pacific should find it impossible to handle transfer business from this region; regrettable, too, if it became necessary to build a parallel road out of Santa Rosa to reach the timber country.

Meanwhile, the Santa Fe secured option on the North Shore road with its Sausalito terminal, but when these people learned that the California Northwestern was sewed up they lost interest in the narrow gauge.

THIS MUST HAVE been a sore disappointment to the North Shore stockholders, for they had hoped to get a price of their holdings which would net them a nice profit on both their original investment and the 10 per cent assessment recently levied.

The squeeze was on the North Shore road. Funds had been disseminated so that little remained to meet current expenses. Credit flew out the window when the board of directors levied their 10 per cent assessment on the stockholders.

Buyers did not want the road without holding its rival broad gauge. A game for high stakes was in progress, with no room for one with a stack of white chips.

A. W. Foster, a very able executive, now saw his opportunity and purchased the North Shore in the summer of 1904. Whether this was at the behest of the Southern Pacific Company or just a shrewd move on his part is guesswork. The price was not announced, but one thing is sure—the North Shore stockholders did not get the price they had hoped for.

A NEW BOARD of directors for the North Shore Company on August 4, 1904, elected A. W. Foster as president; P. H. Lilienthal, also of the California Northwestern Company, vice-president and treasurer; A. W. Foster, Jr., vice president; and F. B. Latham was retained as secretary. President Foster immediately appointed James L. Frazier as general manager of the narrow gauge, and reduced William M. Rank to assistant general manager. R. X. Ryan was appointed general passenger and freight agent, with Mr. Henily as assistant. H. C. Whiting became purchasing agent.

The narrow-gauge company continued to be operated as an independent road under its own name, but the general offices of the two companies were consolidated.

The North Shore road operated in this manner for the next two and a half years.

NOTHING EVENTFUL occurred until April 18, 1906. About 5:13 that morning came the great earthquake. The fault line extended through the length of Tomales Bay; consequently the disturbance along its shores was great and the railroad line suffered heavy damage.

At Point Reyes Station a passenger train standing on a siding was toppled over.

The fireman, getting up steam in his engine at the time, leaped to safety but received a scare that he did not forget for a while. Railroad bridges, fills and riprap work along the bay shore received severe damage. Just northwest of Tomales village a portion of a sidehill slid out, carrying tracks with it; a spur track was thrust directly beneath rails and ties of the main line.

The high trestle or "wind bridge" near Fallon was completely demolished.

Trains did not get through to Cazadero for several weeks and it took months to repair all the damage.

LOOKING FORWARD to a big summer business, the narrow gauge company had intended to put into effect a new schedule on the day of the earthquake. In fact, the San Francisco morning papers, which never got delivered, carried the North Shore time table which scheduled four passenger trains to Cazadero and two additional locals for Point Reyes Station, something that was never heard of before or afterwards.

The Southern Pacific and Santa Fe companies wound up their struggles for railroad domination Humboldt and Mendocino Counties by a compromise.

The problem for the Southern Pacific was to get into the redwood belt—that of the Santa Fe to get out of it.

PLANS WERE ALREADY formulated by Southern Pacific to extend from Willits down the Outlet and Eel Rivers to Eureka. During the latter part of 1906 A. W. Foster sold his interests in the California Northwestern and North Shore lines to the Southern Pacific and resigned his position as president of the two roads on January 1, 1907.

On the other hand, the Santa Fe, Company, shut off from the north shore of San Francisco Bay, had made preliminary surveys of a route ascending the South Fork canyon of the Eel and out through Lake County to connect with its Valley line at Galt.

Each company realized that competing lines in this sparsely settled, mountainous country would never be profitable, so they got together to form a single company on a 50-50 basis.

As a result of this deal the two partners pooled their holdings and on January 8, 1907, organized the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Company to unite these different roads under one head.

THE SANTA FE anteed its San Francisco and Northwestern, a consolidation of Humboldt County roads with a main line running from Arcata south through Eureka and Shively, plus several branch lines; also the Fort Bragg and Southeastern, a combination of logging roads along the Mendocino coast.

The Southern Pacific did likewise with recent purchases from A. W. Foster, which included the California Northwestern and the old Donahue line, which provided a main line from Tiburon north of Willits, with branches to Glen Ellen, Sebastopol, Guerneville and Sherwood.

With the rest went the North Shore narrow gauge and suburban electric roads from Sausalito to Cazadero and branch lines running to

In Memoriam: To A Great Jurist

The Late Justice Jesse W. Carter
Hailed By His Colleagues At Law

(Editor's note: When the Supreme Court of California held memorial services for the late Jesse W. Carter of San Anselmo, associate justice, a tribute was delivered by his longtime friend Carlos R. Freitas of San Rafael. Former Marin County superior judge, Freitas spoke on behalf of practicing lawyers of the state and cited several outstanding jurists who hailed Justice Carter for his fidelity to the traditions of justice. Freitas' eulogy was printed in full in the Recorder, San Francisco law journal.)

CARLOS R. FREITAS
For Practicing Lawyers
of the State

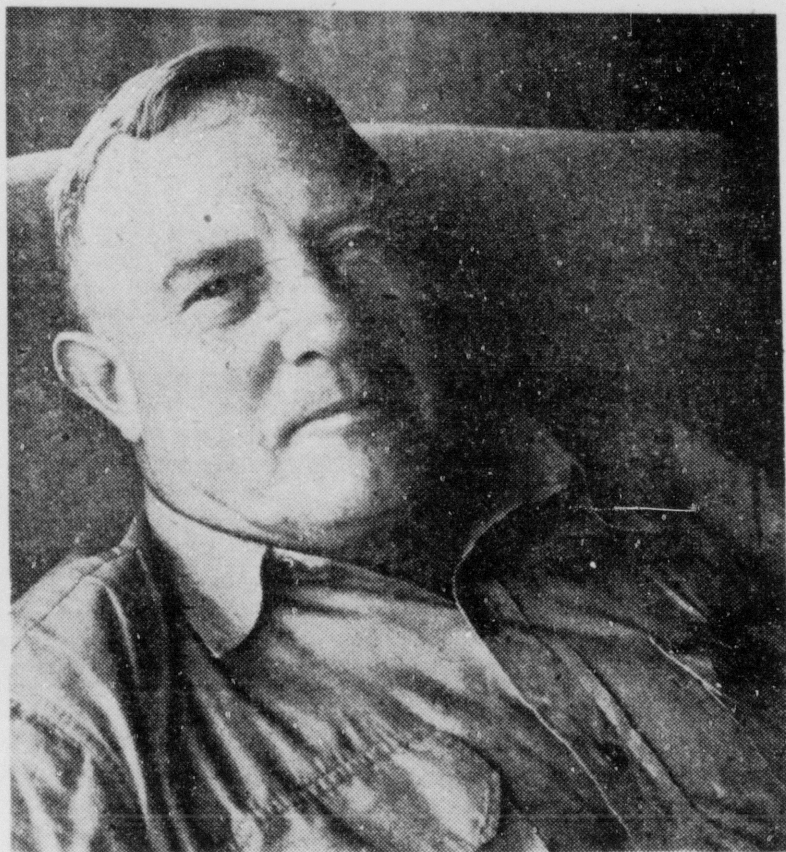

It is my privilege to appear before you today to do honor to the memory of the late, and deeply lamented, Mr. Justice Jesse Washington Carter who, until his untimely death on last March 15, was a member of this honorable court where he had served the people of California with great courage and distinction for almost 20 years.

Mr. Justice Carter was a native Californian, born in Trinity County on December 19th, 1888, the seventh child in a family of eight children. His early background had a deep influence on his later philosophy which he has written into the law of California and which will remain as a living memorial to him so long as there are judges and lawyers.

AS A CHILD, Justice Carter walked miles to school through all kinds of weather. So eager for knowledge was he that he memorized every book which came into his hands. Unlike most of us, he never forgot anything he had once learned. His amazing memory was the source of both terror and delight to his numerous friends. In order to realize his never ending quest for more and higher education during those early days, Justice Carter worked in mines, in logging camps and sawmills so as to earn the necessary funds. When he had exhausted the educational facilities of Trinity and Shasta Counties he came to San Francisco where he worked for the old United Railroads of San Francisco during the day while attending night law school at what is now known as Golden Gate College of the Law.

Justice Carter was graduated from that law college in 1913 and was admitted to practice in this state in the same year. He practiced law in San Francisco for one year and then he opened offices in Redding where he practiced until 1939.

DURING THIS time he made an eviable record as a trial lawyer, participating as chief counsel in the trial of over 1000 cases in the Superior Courts and handling over 300 cases on appeal. During the last 20 years of his law practice Justice Carter handled most of the important litigation in a good portion of Northern California.

JUSTICE CARTER—The death on March 15 of Jesse W. Carter of San Anselmo ended his almost 20 years service on the bench of the Supreme Court of California.

He had a statewide reputation as a lawyer and when he was appointed to this honorable court he was the senior partner of one of the largest and most respected law offices of Northern California, the law firm of Carter, Barrett, Finley and Carlton, which maintained offices both at Redding and Yreka. In addition to his private practice, Justice Carter was elected District Attorney of Shasta County, a position he held from 1919 until 1927. He was appointed City Attorney of Mount Shasta in 1927 and continued in that position until 1939.

HE BECAME a member of the first Board of Governors of the State Bar of California in 1927, serving four consecutive terms, a total of six years, the last two of which he was vice president of the State Bar of California. From 1924 until 1932 Justice Carter served as the attorney for the State Board of Dental Examiners of California. He was City Attorney of Redding from 1937 until 1939.

He was elected State Senator from the Fifth Senatorial District comprising Shasta and Trinity Counties in 1939 from which position he was appointed as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of California by Governor Culbert L. Olson.

In 1950 Justice Carter was awarded an honorary fellowship in the American College of Trial Lawyers. In 1956 he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by Golden Gate College of the Law because his career as lawyer and judge had "been dedicated to sustaining the right of the individual and to preserving, in the administration of justice, the great principle of Magna Carta, 'to none will we sell, deny or delay right or justice,'" and because his vigorous opinions as a member of the Supreme Court have well earned and worthily sustained the right to be included in that select number of judges upon whom the accolade of 'great dissenter' has been bestowed; . . ."

During Justice Carter's first year in law school he memorized the Constitution of the United States together with its amendments. He had, earlier in life, memorized the Declaration of Independence. These two great documents, together with the personal hardships suffered by him, were largely instrumental in shaping his philosophy of the law.

HE FIRMLY, believed and fought for that belief with every available instrument and argument, that every man no matter how humble, and regardless of race, color or creed, was entitled to due process of law.

He believed in, and fought for, individual civil liberties, for freedom of speech, religion, the press and for freedom of thought. While he might disagree with the opinions of others, he would fight to the death for their right to express those diverse opinions. There are lawyers who have disagreed with his philosophies but there are none who will not admit his honest and courageous belief in the principles for which he so valiantly fought.

On the day following the death of Justice Carter, all departments of the Superior Court in Marin County adjourned out of respect to his memory. I would like to quote from the remarks of the presiding judge of Department One of that court, as follows:

"Law is an adverse thing, else there would be no merit in the profession. And inasmuch as it is adverse, it is inevitable that the opinion of one man is exposed to differences; different concepts, different philosophies, different ideologies, different conclusions.

"Such a man was Justice Carter that we must believe that he understood that the vigor, the industry and the profundity with which he expounded his thinking and exposed it must have incurred criticism, and the one first to know it was the Justice himself, and therein lay the man's courage and the man's fearlessness. Out of that, and out of the dissenting opinions, he was contributing to the great body of the law.

"Justice Carter was imbued and guided by the philosophy that, incur what it may, he would give expansion, he would give growth, he would give dimension, and he would give extension to the field of law and thinking in that field. That is Justice Carter's great contribution to the field of the law."

In addition to Justice Carter's amazing memory and knowledge of the law, he brought to the court a fine and brilliant mind. His opinions are noted for their clarity of expression and reasoning. He was a most capable and hard working man and was never known to shirk a duty. He lived for the principles in which he believed.

WHEN HE could not agree with a majority of the members of this court, he considered it one of his duties to make public his reasons for disagreement, in a dissenting opinion. He felt that the losing parties and their attorneys were entitled to know why he could not agree. He also believed that a thorough and vigorous dissenting opinion was a healthy thing in that it showed that the court had considered every aspect of the case under consideration before finally handing down a decision.

Justice Carter believed, as did that other great and often lone dissenter, Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court of the United States, that "no man has earned the right to intellectual ambition until he has learned to lay his course by a star which he has never seen—to dig by the divining rod for springs which he may never reach—to think great thoughts you must be heroes as well as idealists. Only when you have worked alone—when you have felt around you a black gulf of solitude more isolating than that which surrounds the dying man, and in hope and despair have trusted to your own unshaken will—then only will you have achieved. Thus only can you gain the secret isolated joy of the thinker, who knows that, a hundred years after he is dead and forgotten, men who never heard of him will be moving to the measure of his thought—the subtle rapture of a postponed power, which the world knows not because it has not external trappings, but which to his prophetic vision is more real than that which commands an army."

WHILE MUCH has been said of Mr. Justice Carter as the "great dissenter" he, like Mr. Justice Holmes, lived to see many of his dissenting opinions adopted as the law of the land by the Supreme Court of the United States. It is to be hoped that in the future an ever increasing number of his philosophies will be written into the law of this state and of the United States and that his untiring and vigilant battle for the preservation of human liberties will not have been in vain.

Mr. Justice Carter leaves surviving him his widow, Jean Woodward Carter, herself an attorney at law, and three children, the honorable Oliver Jesse Carter, judge of the United States District Court, Harlan Field Carter of Redding and Mrs. Marian Carter Bui of Redding. Although realizing that mere words are inadequate to comfort them, I should like at this time to express to them my deep and

YES, THAT'S AN ART GALLERY—The ferry Vallejo has already quite an art history. Prior to becoming the David Cole Gallery, it was for several years occupied by Jean

Varda. Cole, art dealer of several years' standing, chose ferry for spaciousness — not bohemian aspect. (Michael Bry Photos)

Serious Young Man With Gallery

A serious young art dealer has quietly opened an art gallery on a Sausalito ferry boat. The bohemian aspects of the Vallejo, one-time home of artist Jean Varda, do not impress him—but its space, and the quality of lighting do. (They have also impressed city art critics.)

Richard David Cole, 29, opened his gallery last winter with a quiet issuance of invitations to art patrons with whom he had dealings during his several years in the business.

His current exhibit is taken from his store of paintings by contemporary masters — American, European and Japanese. In mid-June he will exhibit wire sculpture by Ruth Asawa and paintings by David Simpson.

HIS IS A full-time job. He spends the afternoons, 1 to 6 p.m., Wednesdays through Sundays, minding the gallery. The rest of his time is concerned with showing the works of such clients as Gordon Onslow Ford of Inverness, Wolfgang Paalen, now in Mexico; Lee Mullican, former Sausalitan; Fritz Rauh and John Saccaro of San Francisco, Ulfert Wilke, Seymour Locke; calligraphy by Tobase and ceramics by J. B. Blunk of Inverness.

His private collection, from which he also deals, includes a much-reproduced Tanguy, works by Stephen Hayter, Morris Graves and Mark Toby and several pieces by Matisse.

"What I have to do is convince people of my taste and judgment," Cole says.

In addition, he works continually to improve the ferry boat. At present, he is using only two of its large rooms; has five more in reserve.

HE EXPECTS the gallery to take two or three years to become established financially. Meantime, his concern is to be able to have someone staff the gallery part of the time to free him for his art dealings.

Cole did not go into his venture with "silver spoon" backing. Most of his important pieces he bought when he was the poorest—a student at the California School of Fine Arts.

"I don't know why it works that way, but you always manage to do this sort of thing when you have the least money."

A painting for which he paid $200 is now worth easily 10 times that.

He does have strong family support. His father, a PG&E engineer, helped him repair the gangplank prior to the opening.

Cole's apprenticeship to art dealing was with the late Alex-

"I think we're going into a phase where we'll have a great deal of good art. I hope to have a few who will rise above the good—perhaps one or two to become really great."

Sometime later this year, Cole hopes to publish a book, "which is one of the functions of the traditional gallery."

Mill Valley, through San Rafael to Point San Quentin and Markhams.

OFFICIALS APPOINTED for the Northwestern Pacific were: A. H. Payson, from the Santa Fe, president; E. E. Calvin, vice-president; J. L. Willcut, secretary; A. H. Reddington, treasurer; Thomas Mellersh, comptroller; James Agler, from the S.P., general manager; B. F. Porter, assistant general manager.

Porter was placed in charge of the Northern Division. W. J. Hunter, superintendent, held a like position for the Southern Division.

It was further agreed that each co-owner of the Northwestern Pacific Company should have operational control of the road in rotation by placing five representatives on the nine-member board of directors for alternate terms.

NWP commenced work in October, 1907, on a road to complete the 106-mile gap between Willits and Shively, but construction lagged at both ends because of interruptions. Many difficulties were encountered in this rough mountain region.

IT WAS NOT until seven years later that the last spike was driven, after enormous expenditures.

The route chosen was that of the Southern Pacific survey, following the main Eel River.

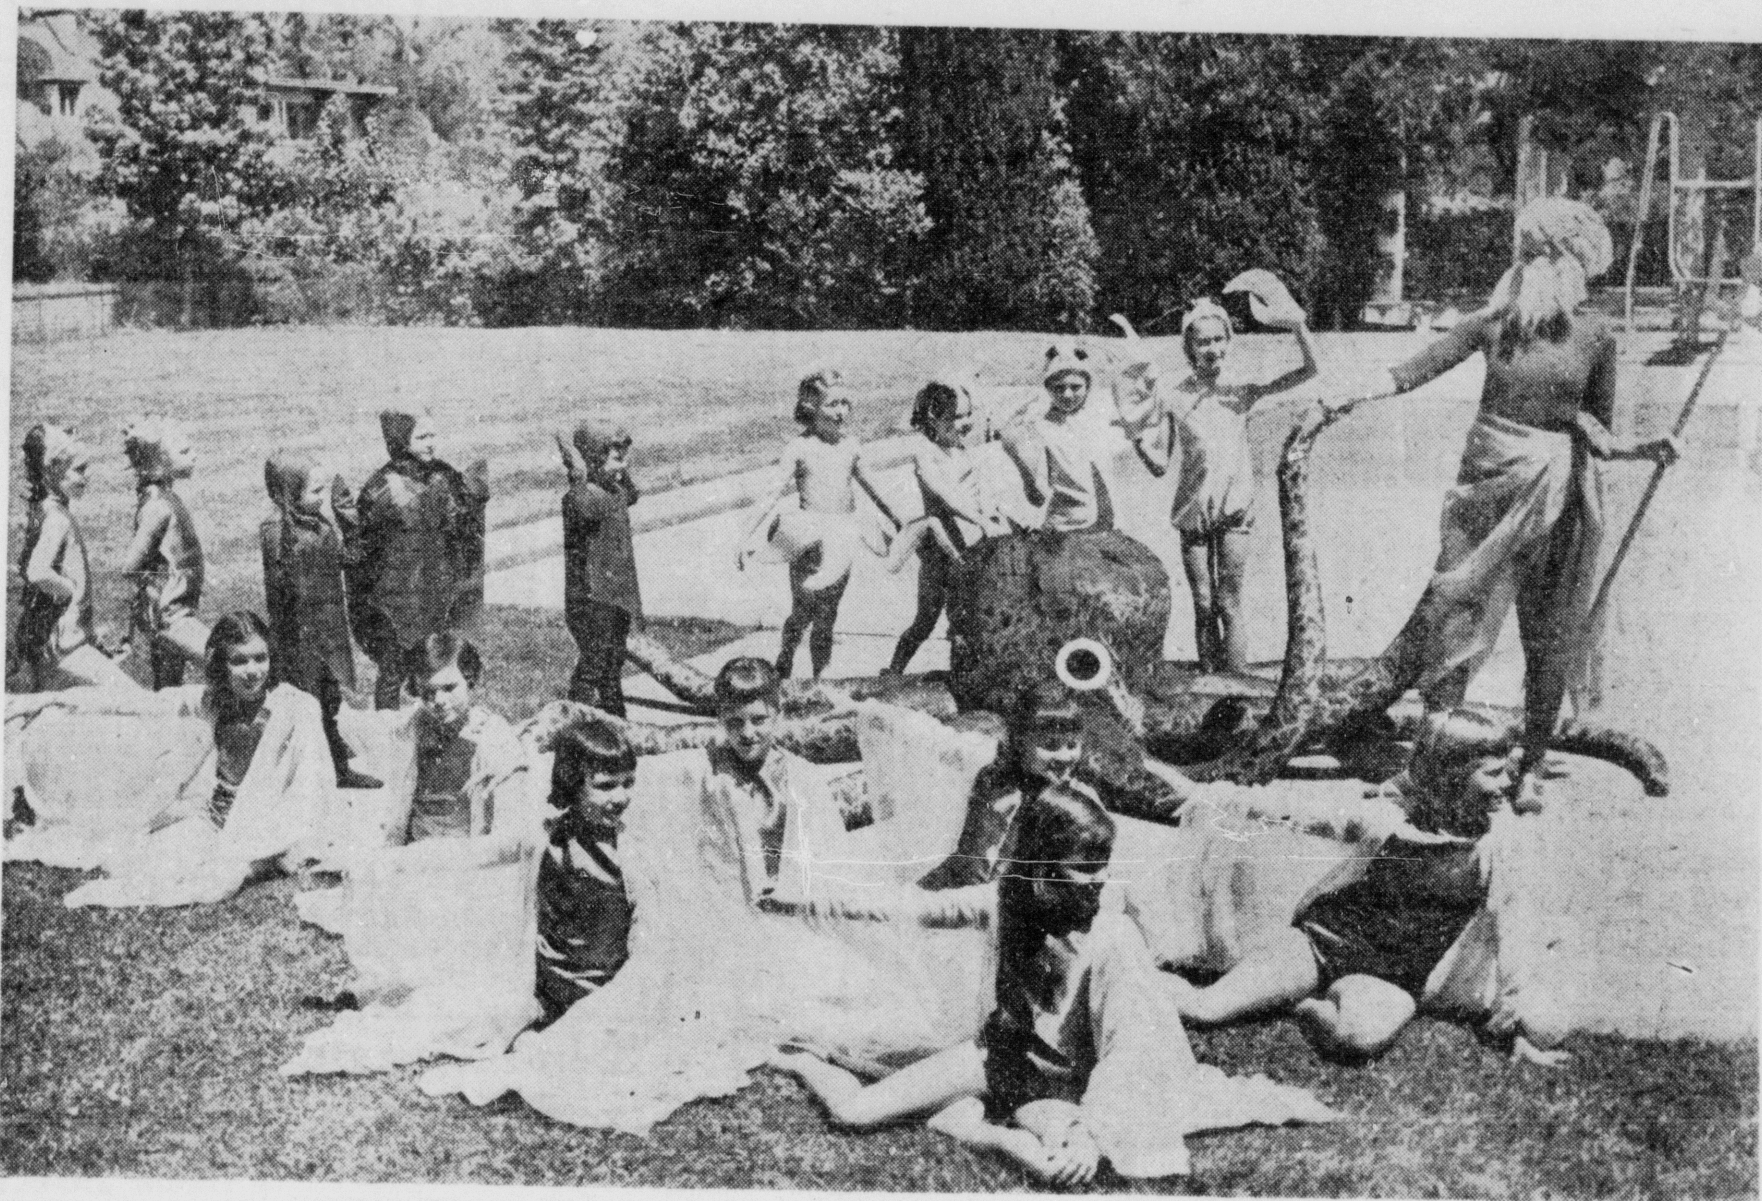

The initial cost was not all, for the company found it impossible for many years to keep this stretch of road open during wintertime due to frequent landslides.

It is doubtful if the NWP Company any dividends for a long while, if ever.

The Santa Fe sold its interest in the NWP to the Southern Pacific Company during 1929. As things turned out, this proved a smart move.

Aquacade is presented for the 14th consecutive year under sponsorship of the Ross-Kentfield-Greenbrae Unit of Marin Junior Theater.

The wonder of wonders will be the 25-foot malevolent looking octopus, the creation of many hours of resourceful work by Kitty (Mrs. James L.) Heynemann of Belvedere who for more than 10 years, even after her daughter was no longer of Ballet Aquacade age, has developed the sometimes original and amusing—sometimes beautiful and breath-taking—props for this colorful event.

When the director and instigator of Ballet Aquacade, Mrs. Ralston W. Hodgson, started working many weeks ago on the choreography and on the "aquagraphy," a word she has coined herself, she began thinking about a number to be called "Fun With Neptune." She asked her one-woman properties department to dream up a giant octopus that would float but would not get so heavy when waterlogged that one person could not carry it.

This was the problem Kitty Heynemann finally solved after many trials and errors. Her shopping expeditions for octopus ingredients took her all around the Bay area and into some musty waterfront marine supply and surplus stores. Kapok and rubberized hair got too heavy when wet to be the proper body of an octopus, and she finally found styrofoam.

The covering was discovered in a World War II parachute of camouflage silk. A huge life preserver, large enough to form the base of an octopus, was hard to find, but a real crisis came unexpectedly when Kitty put the parachute, well coated with water sealer, into her electric dryer and almost burned the house down.

Finally the sea monster was complete, but this was only part of Kitty's work. She still had to make the three huge, richly encrusted oyster shells from which "The Three Pearls" will emerge to delight King Neptune and his court of "Turtles," "Sea Nymphs," "Star Fish," "Sea Horses," and many more.

Other props, too, will demonstrate Kitty's originality and artistry which is not entirely a matter of native ability, for Mrs. Heynemann is a graduate architect and has had professional experience in that field and in landscape architecture, as well as being an enthusiastic veteran worker for Junior Theater.

Under the inspired and energetic direction of Gladys Hodgson who has personally trained all the dancers appearing in the spectacular ballet numbers, Ballet Aquacade promises to be bigger and better than ever this year with 365 girls plus a boys' swim team appearing in the shows to be given at 2:30 p.m. each day. Mrs. Robert L. Alvarado is the assistant ballet mistress and the swim director is Mrs. Thomas E. Gilboy.

From the shimmering golden yellow costumes featured in the opening "Golden Moments With Strauss" to the patriotic finale in red, white and blue, the wonderful

Panoramas Of The Past At New Museum

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Panoramas of the past unfold on a visit to the museum of the Marin County Historical Society. Designed to stir the imagination, each object and picture reflects a phase of Marin's colorful past. In the delightful old Victorian house known as Boyd Park Lodge, at B and Mission in San Rafael, are housed historical treasures which are of interest not only to the casual visitor but to the researcher and scholar.

A huge conversation piece is the tallow kettle at the entrance to the museum. At Rancho Olompali, where the kettle stood for more than a century, the first adobe of the North Bay area was built. That was in 1776 when two young Spanish explorers, in gratitude for shelter and food given them by the Indians of Olompali, showed them how to make adobe brick and aided them in the construction of their first home. Later the Indians built several other adobes and one of these still stands, encased in the walls of what was, for many years, the Burdell home.

IN 1843, the Indian chief at Olompali, the kind and intelligent Camilo Ynita, received the grant to the rancho from the Mexican government. It is believed he is the only Indian in California who received a land grant. Three years later the only battle of the Bear Flag War was fought at Olompali, when Lt. Henry Ford, an American, surprised a company of Californians at the rancho and several were killed.

The kettle, which had been brought around Cape Horn and hauled by a team of oxen to Olompali, was converted for the time being into a stew pot to cook food for the military. Market hunters were then ravaging the country which abounded with elk, deer and bear. They slaughtered the animals for the hides and fat, which was tried out for tallow in such vats as the one at Olompali. The meat was left for the Indians.

THE INDIANS, Coast Miwoks, lived in rancherias around the bay and along the streams. Their homes were wickiups, built of willows and thatched with tules and covered with hides. From the mounds near the rancherias, most of the Indian relics in the museum were recovered.

Among these are the arrowheads and spears made of obsidian which the Indians in Marin received in trade from those of the North; stone weights for the fishing lines, bowls of smoking pipes, mortars and pestles with which the Indian women ground acorns and seeds into a meal.

Francis Drake, an Englishman, was the first white man to set foot on these shores. This was 41 years before the landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth Rock. He landed his ship, the Golden Hinde, at what is today known as Drake's Bay, on June 17, 1579. Drake, who had been unsuccessful in finding the Northwest Passage, had put back to make repairs on his ship. He claimed the land, which he called New Albion, in the name of his country, putting up a "plate of brass" stating he had taken possession in the name of Queen Elizabeth of England and her successors "forever." The exact replica of this plate is in the museum.

DRAKE EXPLORED the area around the bay and after his ship was repaired, he sailed around the world, the first Englishman to circumnavigate the globe. On return home, his grateful queen knighted him aboard his ship.

However, the English made no attempt to further Drake's claims to the Pacific shore and the Spanish, who had conquered Mexico, came up from the south and carried on explorations and began settlement of California. The Franciscan friars, under the leadership of Father Junipero Serra, in 1769 began building a chain of missions in California and Mission San Rafael Arcangel, which gave its name to what is now Marin's county seat, was the twentieth of the 21 missions. Founded on December 14, 1817, the establishment was first as an asistencia or branch of Mission San Francisco de Asis, better known as Mission Dolores, in what is now San Francisco.

MANY OF THE Indians at Mission Dolores were ill and the friars believed that the milder climate at San Rafael would be beneficial. A chapel and living quarters were constructed and several acres of land were cultivated and orchards and vineyards were planted. The mission grew in size and importance and soon attained full mission status. After a long revolt, Mexico achieved her independence and threw off the shackles of Spain in 1821. California was under Mexican rule from then until 1846 and the occupation by the United States.

The Spanish left an indelible print on California in culture and tradition. Many of the Spanish families remained and received land grants. In the museum are a number of Spanish artifacts, a sword which is several hundred years old, spurs and bridles for fine Spanish horses, and metates, on which the women ground corn and other seeds.

IN 1834, the death blow came to the California missions with the Decree of Secularization. The lands and live stock were taken by the government, the friars were forced to flee and the Indians were dispersed. The San Rafael Mission buildings were put to various uses. Capt. John Fremont and his men camped there and the alcaldes and other officials used the buildings as courtrooms. The structures gradually fell into ruins and destruction was completed in the early 1860's when the hand hewn timbers were hauled away to build houses in the village of San Rafael.

No pictures were taken of the mission but in the museum are a number of paintings and sketches, artists' versions of the structure they gained from records and information from early residents of Marin. In the museum, a fragment of tile from the mission roof, shows a peculiar dark streak, which was mud in the clay dug where the PG and E shops now stand.

AN EXACT REPLICA of the mission was rebuilt on the site in 1949 through the efforts of the Marin County Historical Society and funds from the Hearst Foundation.

Maps in the museum show the grants of land made in Marin by the Mexican government in gratitude for services, either military or civil. Those were Marin's most colorful days, the "Days of the Dons" with grantees living in princely fashion on vast estates, raising fine horses and cattle and entertaining lavishly. Some of the rancho owners were Spanish, was was Ignacio Pacheco, who received the grant to the San Jose rancho and whose gold framed picture hangs in the museum, some were Irish as were Don Timoteo Murphy and John (Juan) Reed who received the Corte Madera del Presidio grant in 1834. Another was an Englishman, the master mariner Captain William Richardson, who was granted the Saucelito Rancho.

In 1850 when California became a state, Marin was made one of the original counties. Gradually the ranchos dwined dled in size as portion after portion was sold to new settlers. These brought with them their treasured possessions and many of these are on display in the museum. Among them are a cradle made in Switzerland, a Spanish chest, a sewing machine brought round the Horn, guns and pistols, dishes and even a bean pot a bride brought from her native Boston. In the picture gallery is a splendid collection of scenes of early Marin and photographs of pioneers.

HISTORIANS REVEL in the museum's library. In specially built cases are bound volumes of old newspapers, the Marin Journal and the Tocsin. Old account books show transactions of the pioneers and now being processed and catalogued are diaries and pamphlets, containing information on events of yesteryear.

And how did the museum come into being? Shortly after the late Belle C. Brown and I organized the Marin County Historical Society in 1935, people began bringing me pictures and keepsakes of historical interest. For a time, they were housed in a room in the old Independent building. When that space was needed, the collection had to be moved and it was stored in the basement of a building at San Rafael High School.

When the replica of the San Rafael Mission was constructed, the wing adjacent to the chapel was designated the historical room. The collection of the historical society, which had been growing steadily, was placed for display in the mission room and drew hundreds of visitors in a year. However, the collection had to be moved again when the historical room was converted into a religious library and gift shop.

IT WAS THEN that the City of San Rafael and its Park Commission gave the historical society permission to use Boyd Park lodge as a public museum.

At the present time, it is staffed with volunteers under the direction of Roy Graves, a vice president of the society, and open on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock. Later it is expected the museum will be open daily.

STATUE

Look there's a cat tail autumn rain around
A lamp post's corner curve, I slip on wet
Brown cobblestones, look, a monk's cloth mound
Of moonlight at the feet of Mary set
In stone, her arms outstretched as if to hold Me lullabying, where rick-rack light is
On her robe, pad gravel rough — I'll be bold
Enough to kneel in sculptured wire to her.
There's baby rain to drink from her chalice hands
This carpet's not plush but right for her — leaves
Of magnolia embroidered Cathedral ground where bands

Of candle shadows mark bowing shawl spun trees.
Shake, nylon knees, fingers count jubilee!
Surrender, lie lengthwise O forgive you me.

Pair Of Steigs Play At Poker

"Poker for Fun and Profit," by Irwin Steig and illustrated by cartoonist William Steig, contains valuable information for everyone from neophyte to the sharks in the back room. It is written by Irwin Steig, a shrewd, pragmatic master of many of the so-called "games of chance"— especially poker. Steig's counsel on the game is extremely original. He relies on practical psychology which he thinks is more fool-proof than any marked deck. You size up your opponents: when they raise or fold, their mannerisms while playing, even how much they eat in the course of a session. Such tactics, he feels, can make the difference between consistent winning and consistent losing.

MOOT ROUTE

I have long been aware that with troubles and care,
And in ail of the problems I've found,
It never will fail with each trial you assail,
To go over, or under, or around.

If promotions are due, and a raise rated, too,
And your qualifications are sound;
You never should stop! See the man at the top!
Just go over, or under, or around.

And when traffic is piled for uncountable miles,
Cars so thick that you can't see the ground,
With a bit of good luck, you can usually duck
Either over, or under, or around.

So when problems are posed, you can be one of those Who are worldly and learned and profound.
But when beckoned by Fate up to Saint Peter's gate,
It depends on your sins! Up or down?

GUIDE TO VACATIONS

Phenomenal, Practical Book For Armchair Or Highroad

AMERICAN VACATION BOOK, by George S. Wells. R. C. Dresser and Co. 221 pp. $5.95.

Now that summer is just around the corner and everyone's thoughts are turning to vacations, this book by Mill Valley's George S. Wells is just what you need to solve the problem of Where To Go.

Wells has undertaken a phenomenal project: A survey of all possible vacations in the United States. The result is a wonderful compilation of where, when and how to enjoy the vacation of your choice, whether it is spent fishing, hiking, camping, eating, sailing or just plain relaxing.

Wells begins with some sensible advice about things often neglected in books of this type: The state of your health, money, and What To Do With The Children.

THE PRACTICAL attitude is kept throughout the book. Every chapter is followed by a page or two listing specific vacation spots of the sort referred to in the text, with addresses, attractions, and very often a guide to what such a vacation would cost.

It's perfect for armchair vacation planning.

There is almost nothing you might want to do on a vacation that Wells can't tell you about. He covers cruises, dude ranches, skiing, American festivals of all kinds, wildlife refuges, public parks, camping and hiking (in wild or tame areas), interesting islands, excursions to Mexico and Canada.

Wherever these vacation spots are, Wells has been there, and can (and does) tell you things about them in far more detail than the travel folders.

Wells' pleasant style makes good reading even for the home-bound who can't afford to travel more than 20 miles. He even tosses in a few recipes, so you can try to reproduce some famous dishes you might have eaten had you gone to their birthplaces.

WHETHER YOU are planning an expensive vacation, a cheap one or a stay-at-home vicarious one, the "American Vacation Book" will prove entertaining and instructive. The honest-to-goodness vacationer will find much helpful information, and the stay-at-home can learn to spout facts about all sorts of places.

For both kinds of vacationists, this book is a must.

Well-Traveled Marin Man Knows Whereof He Writes

George S. Wells of Mill Valley, author of the "American Vacation Book," is a man who knows whereof he writes.

He has traveled through every state of the union — for fun, and in researching for his travel books and articles which have established him as a natural authority on the subject.

Wells' roaming has not been restricted to the United States — he has wandered in Asia and Europe as well. In World War II he served in the China-Burma theater under the late Gen. Claire Chennault of Flying Tiger fame, and after the war was editor of an English language newspaper in Vienna.

Much of Wells' traveling and writing has been in company with his wife, Iris, an author and world traveler in her own right. They co-authored a book on America's wilderness areas which is considered authoritative.

A NATIVE of Dutchess County, New York, Wells has been writing since an early age. He was a reporter for various metropolitan dailies in the east, and began his freelance writing career while in public relations work in Chicago. In addition to the travel and outdoor writing for which he is noted, he has published fiction.

Until recently a part-time Marin County reporter for the San Francisco Examiner, Wells is not an assistant city editor for that paper. The Wellses reside at 7 Millsdale lane, Mill Valley.

BEACHCOMBER'S SPECIAL

Styling By Father Neptune; Price: Ache Of Your Back

By VIVIAN BROWN

If you'd furnish your beach house with accessories in an economical, attractive fashion, consider beachcombing.

That's the advice from artist Sylvia Robbin, who has managed to create some unusual one-of-a-kind furnishings for her home at Montauk Beach, Long Island from offerings tossed up by the sea. She explains:

"The most fruitful beachcombing often, though not necessarily, occurs after a storm, when a whole new store of merchandise awaits one for the toting. Best of all, the price is right — practical, unique furniture for free — less one considers an aching back a price to pay!"

SYLVIA AND her doctor husband Sid — who loves to angle for stripers in the surf — set out together with jeep and bucksaw, primarily to gather driftwood for burning in the fireplace but always keeping an eye peeled for the unusual.

"The beach is a huge wonderful grab-bag," says Sylvia "and though you rarely find exactly what you are looking for, you often wind up with a prize of an entirely different sort."

THERE IS the unusual piece of driftwood that may resemble a bird, a dragon, a ballet dancer, a dinosaur, anything that can be fancied, and this may become a cherished piece of bric-a-brac to add to the charm of your home, be it in the city, country or on the beach.

Sylvia doesn't stop at gathering up these gifts of the sea.

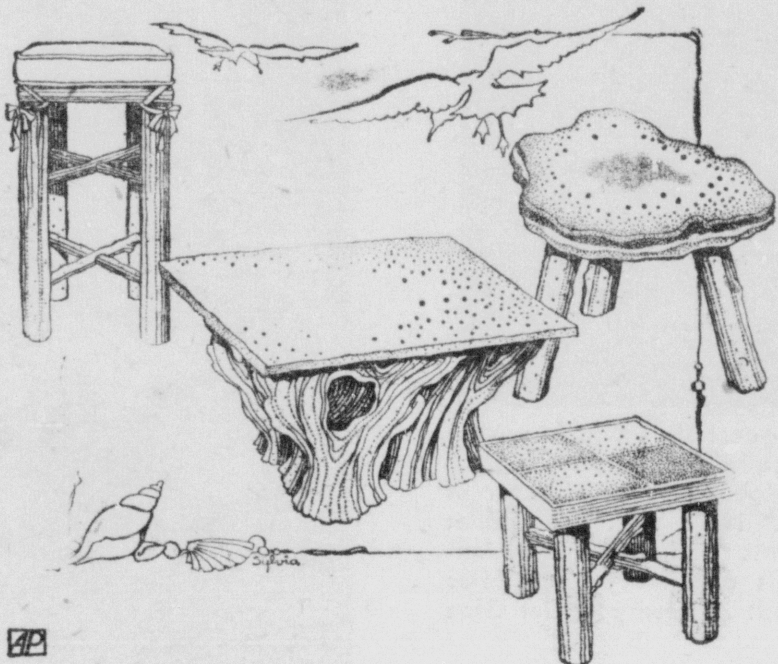

"An exceptionally beautiful stone was stumbled upon while gathering small stones for a patio floor. It has a layer of pink sandwiched between two layers of grey, the entire stone ground smooth and thin by hundreds or thousands of years of pounding by the surf. It made a wonderful three-legged stool, with driftwood serving as legs," she says.

She has tried in vain for something similar but now concludes her table is one of a kind.

THE LOVELY THING about the combination of driftwood and stone for outdoor tables is that "weather can only improve them," she points out, "and you can't say that about many outdoor patio accessories." Other advantages are that they cannot be toppled by the wind and do not need to be stored during the winter.

Sylvia favors driftwood that is left in its natural state, believing its color and texture can't be improved upon, though some people do prefer to tint or gild it.

She has made a handsome bathroom vanity by combining driftwood with a foam cushion. A charming outdoor table has an inverted sawed-off, driftwood tree trunk for a base and a flagstone top. A small end table or telephone table was made with driftwood legs and a tile top.

YOUR OWN imagination will run riot, if you just give it a chance, suggests Sylvia. "When you pick up an object that is unusual, give it some thought before tossing it away as a beautiful but useless item. A great collection of unusual stones may make a handsome terrace floor, perfectly matched shells may make interesting lamp base or may be framed to achieve unusual effects. There is no end to the discoveries you may make on a beach."

May 'Mum Special In Local Nurseries

Mums are a May special in nurseries. Not that they aren't special any month of the year. But you can now buy them inexpensively as rooted cuttings in plant bands. They are easy to transplant this way, the roots being disturbed hardly at all. Get them off to the right start by pinching out the tops after planting and follow a regular schedule of pinching and fertilizing through summer. Following summer growth, pinching back should be stopped. Ask your nurseryman to suggest a time table for this.

MANZANITA (Arctostaphylos sp.)—Manzanitas are evergreen shrubs with very crooked branches which usually have smooth, polished, dark red bark. The leaves are thick and leathery. The clusters of little pink or white urn-shaped blossoms are succeeded by berry-like fruits. There are 38 different species of Manzanita in California varying from small trees to prostrate shrubs. Although some are killed outright by fire, others send up sprouts from a heavy root crown and help to cover the scars of burns. The Indians used the berries for both food and drink. No Use Kicking Yourself Now -- Buy Bedding Plants

If you're kicking yourself for failure to plant perennials last fall, stop it. You can make up for the oversight by planting field and container-grown transplants that are available at nurseries now.

These transplants are mature plants, no seedlings, and therefore the cost runs slightly higher. But you get so much more color per clump that you'll agree the difference in price is well worth it.

Not all perennials are successfully grown and sold this way. Some resent disturbance and are better set out as seedlings. A check with the California Assn. of Nurserymen, however, indicates that you won't lack for a wide choice.

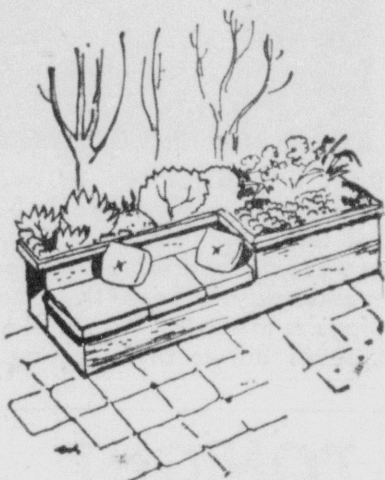

TOPPING THE LIST is the delphinium. Big clumps of Pacific hybrids will give you two — or even three — periods of bloom this year. Moreover, they bloom in far greater profusion than do seedlings (which are also available). To reap the maximum benefit of the bloom, plant early.

To brighten a shady border, set out mature, ready-to-bloom clumps of giant Polyanthus primroses. These are real eye-catchers, to be admired for many years. Many clumps will be large enough for dividing next fall into even more plants.

Day lilies are of the easiest culture and excellent for carrying color through the summer. They are at their best in warm areas, but many new varieties have shown increasing adaptability to cooler coastal conditions.

Transvaal daisies are garden aristocrats, holding their vivid heads of color on long, graceful stems. These lush perennials know an ever-wider popularity in California, needing only good drainage and shallow planting with their crowns exposed to do well.

There are others — Shasta Daisy and Phlox to name only two. But our point has been made. Even a skeptical gardener should be convinced by now that fall isn't the ONLY time to plant perennials.

PLANTER BENCH—Patio corner serves double purpose when planter and bench interlock. Raised bed guarantees drainage for fussy plants. Before cutting boards, be sure and measure pillow sizes—unless the distaff side of the household wants to make them to fit. Handsome plastic-covered foam cushions are available.

Watts To Begin TV Series On Far Eastern Philosophy

Mill Valleyan Alan W. Watts, author, scholar and lecturer, will examine great themes in Eastern philosophy and their application to modern life during a new 13-week series over KQED, Channel 9, beginning Monday at 9 p.m.

In the kinescoped programs Watts presents a look at man, nature, time, life and death and points up the differences between the Far East and Western world in regard to these concepts.

Watts, a leading exponent of Zen Buddhism and former Anglican priest, illustrates his talks with Asian objects of art, drawings and diagrams which he executes with Chinese ink and brush.

Must man see himself as nature's conqueror or collaborator? Who can plan for future successfully? Is there an order in nature? What is pain? These are a few of the questions which are taken up by Watts in the programs.

A member of the American Oriental Society and former dean of the American Academy of Asian Studies in San Francisco, Watts is a prolific writer. Born in England in 1915 and educated at King's School in Canterbury, he wrote his first book "The Spirit of Zen" at the age of 20 and since that time he has written more than a dozen books on comparative philosophy and religion. His most recent literary accomplishment is his book on "Nature, Man and Woman," published last year.

From 1935-38 in London, he served as editor of "The Middle Way," a journal of Oriental philosophy and religion. In 1937-41 Watts was co-editor of a library of textbooks and translations, "The Wisdom of the East Series."

Arriving in the United States in 1938, he lectured in New York for three years while publishing his next book, "The Meaning of Happiness" (1940). He spent a number of years in the ministry of the Episcopal Church and during this period published "The Theologia Mystica of St. Dionysius" (1946), "Behold the Spirit" (1947), and "Easter—Its Story and Meaning" (1950).

In 1957 Watts resigned from the Academy of Asian Studies to devote himself to independent writing, research and lecturing. An associate editor of Pantheon Books, Inc., New York, Watts conducts his own radio program every Sunday over Station KPFA in Berkeley entitled "Way Beyond the West." When not working on a current book, he often is scheduled for lecturing engagements throughout the country. He lives at 310 Laverne avenue in Mill Valley.

NEW POLICE SERIES BOWS — Edward Binns (right) plays the role of Detective Roy Brenner in the new drama series, "Brenner," making its debut at 9 o'clock tonight over KPIX (Channel 5). In this scene our hero suspects Rudy Bond of plotting against the well-being of a great city. The series, portraying policemen as human beings rather than crime-busting automatons, co-stars Binns as a dedicated detective and James Broderick as his son, Ernie, a rookie cop.

Model At Harbor Point

The 14-year brain child of developer Sam Neider has taken shape on Strawberry peninsula. The first 100 parcels of Harbor Point are now on the market and a model home built by William H. McDevitt, builders and engineering contractors, is open for inspection.

The property, owned by Neider's Marin Land Company, was part of the original Spanish land grant of the C. J. Reid family. Neider bought it in 1945.

HARBOR POINT will be as exclusive as promised. Prospective buyers may expect their affiliations and financial standing to be checked, even though they may be capable of writing a check for the full amount. (Lots with houses run from $50,000 to $100,000).

Transactions also guard against holding lots for speculation. Now that Harbor Point is open, Neider wants each unit to develop in an orderly manner.

Wrapped in this expensive package are such facilities as a guarded entrance to the area, privilege of joining the Harbor Point Beach Club with its two-mile frontage on the dredged inlet and recreational features; underground utilities and splendid views. The first unit includes both hillside and waterfront lots, ranging in area from $\frac{1}{3}$ to one acre and from \$17,000 and up in price.

THE MODEL HOME bears an air of reserved distinction, highlighted with generous use of field stone, a patio waterfall and a singularly spacious amount of storage—both indoor and outdoor.

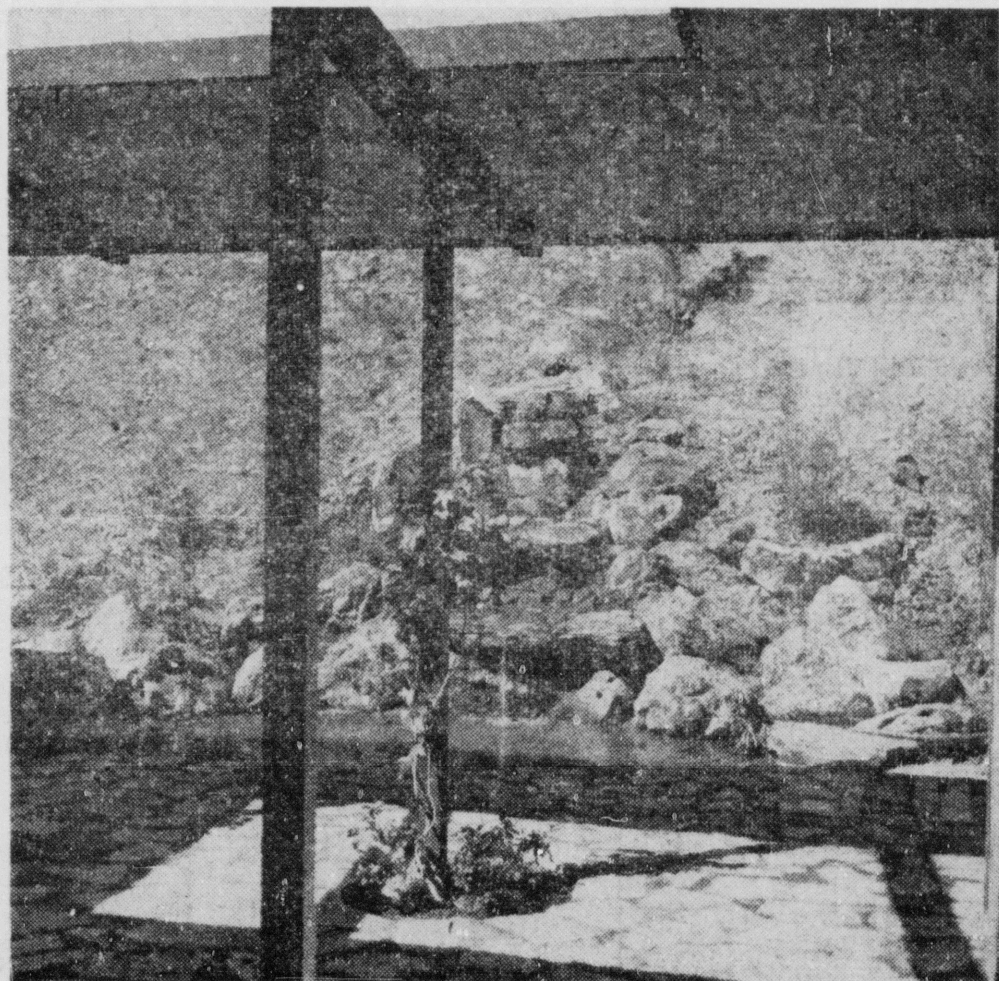

The McDevitt firm is offering custom home-lot package deals to assist buyers in getting quality for their money.

STONWORK—Craftmanship is evident in fieldstone retaining walls and entry steps. Carport (left) contains storage, as does rear wall of house.

VIEW—living room and front patio overlooking bay and rolling hills slated for future Harbor Point units. Just over patio rail is leveled site of beach club.

DINING PATIO — Naturalistic waterfall adds cooling note to rear patio enclosed on three sides by house. At right is dining room view.
